No Paper Next Week

Over work and worry for a too long and constant period has put the editor on the sick list, and succumbing to the advice of his physician he announces with very great regret that there will be no issue of the OBSERVER until Thursday, Oct. 19. The editor has hope that he may recover in that time, and the physician encourages the hope.

During the mean time the office will be open for job work and most especially for the receipt of outstanding bills.

Perhaps if one thing more than another has worked to the nervous destruction of the "boss" it has been a balky gasoline engine. This contraption is next week to be overhauled or chucked out. Trying to edit the paper, run the business and the engine, doesn't sound like a heavy job, but two years at it with no time off is disastrous to the mental, moral and physical man.

Kindly grant us a week for repairs.

Four Pages

Owing to the non-receipt of the ready printed sheets that makes up the 2nd, 3rd, 6th and 7th pages of the OBSERVER, we are unfortunately able to give to our readers only the four pages ordinarily printed in this office.

Letter From W. N. Raymond.

On Train, Nearing Moose Jaw, Sept. 26, 1911.

DEAR EDITOR:

Perhaps you will permit us to say a few words through your paper, to the dear old friends at home.

First we are all well and enjoying the trip immensely. We were met at Montreal by Arthur Dickenson formerly of Woodstock, who certainly made it very pleasant for us during the 12 hours spent in that city, shopping, sightseeing, etc. Leaving there at 10.30 P. M., we were fortunate in having our berths secured in advance, as every available seat was packed. From here we go through without change. The scenery through western Ontario is good, the further west the more broken the country. Mountain lakes covered with small growth of timber or brush. The railway following most of the time, a chain of lakes, making it the sportsman's paradise for nearly a thousand miles.

The next place of importance is North Bay, here passengers change for Cobalt, the famous mining camp of New Ontario. North Bay is situated on Lake Nipissing, a beautiful sheet of water twenty miles wide, and ninety long, large steamers ply on this lake. Six hundred miles further west we come to Port Arthur and Fort William, the Chicago of Canada. Only three miles apart these two cities have population of over 35,000, with three Trans-Continental railways situated at the head of Lake Superior, 'tis certainly a great inland port, elevators, railway shops, mills, then more elevators etc. Five hundred miles further west on Monday evening we arrived at Winnipeg, the bustling and hustling up-to-date city of the middle west, population 152,000. Here we were met by our young friend Hartley Boyer of Hartland, who very acceptably conducted our party around the city.

On awaking Tuesday morning the scenery is simply grand. Think of riding day and night at the rate of twenty-five miles per hour, through a great level interval, covered as far as the eye can reach, with immense fields of wheat, oats, barley and flax. No fences, the grain practically all cut, but threshing just commencing. Due to unfavorable weather, this scene is dotted with good sized towns and up-to-date cities. Lots elevators and mills, everywhere. To one unaccustomed to such scenes, it looks as though it would take all winter to get the crop in the graneries and elevators. This county has plenty of water, small rivers, brooks and ponds etc. We have crossed the continent five different times at different points and never have we seen anything to excel this beautiful picture—the Saskatchewan wheat belt. It certainly is inspiring to a Canadian, and must look inviting to the home seeker of any clime.

I will close with best wishes from us all.

W. N. RAYMOND.
