POETRY.

FLOATING OUT.

Floating out in the twilight gray,
At the beck of a shadowy hand,
From this cold and desolate land To the beautiful country far away; Past the loving words and the tender tears, Fast the love of a life and the hope of years.

Floating out in the twilight gray,
And the awful shadow is o'er her now, But a glory encircles her snowy brow From the beautiful country far away;
And her bright earth life will shortly seem Like the memory faint of a troubled dream.

Forty years have passed away Since she floated out in the twilight gray, And I wait for the rising of death's cold tide To bear me away to my angel bride; In the midst of a bright, perpetual day,
In the beautiful country far away.

HETTY HAZELWOOD.

Jeannie Sinclair,

OR,
THE LILY OF THE STRATH.

CHAPTER XXVII.

TRACKING THE ROBBERS—Lynch Law—Letter FROM THE STRATH.

"He told me that he had won the bag and Custo's and knowing him for a gambler, the story was likely, and I believed it. I bought the dust, but not the nugget. He has got that still, but if he should lose the thousand dollars he has raised on the dust, he'll want to sell the nugget too. He offered it already, but we couldn't agree about the price. I examined it however, and know that it is exactly as this gentleman has described."

"I guess he'll be tossing the cards at Jus-to's at this here moment," remarked Jus-than.

Moses nodded his assent to the conjecture.

"And where or what is Custo's?" asked William.

"Custo is a Mexican and keeps a gambling establishment. His place is in the very centre of the town."

"And Murdochson is, I calculate, a countryman of your'n," said Bardie. "Leas'taway he gives himself out for a Scotchman. He shows up only at Custo's, and plucks the geese that go cackling in there. 'Cute as he is, though, I guess a regular down-caster could clear him out in no time, for we Americans can whip all creation in all departments. So if a real downright genuine New Yorker has come across him, it wouldn't be long till he found his hands in contact with the lining of his breeches' pocket, and that's why the devil would tempt him to rob that ten of your'n."

"Then, what is to be done?" inquired William. "We'll take the best course advisable for the recovery of our property, but have it one way or another we are resolved."

"The matter is not a very difficult one," observed the Jew. "If he has not lost it all at play, it will be easy to make him disgorge, for all the diggers present will be on our side, and it will be a great matter to rid the place of a scamp like Murdochson. You'll do the business, I think, Bardie."

"Slack as greased lightning, if you'll go with us to help me, I'll give you a good share of the haul," answered Moses, as he replaced the bag in the box. "Shagar," he added, looking to the figure lying before the stove, "you keep watch till I return."

"All right," grinned the frightful looking object. "By the body of Moses if any of those unreconciled Philistines come prowling here to rob I'll kill them as David killed Goliath. See if I don't, master, that's all."

"I hope your declaration will not be put to the proof, Shagar," observed his master, who at the same moment, intimated that he was ready to accompany them. They all sallied forth and proceeded slowly in a body to the centre of the camp, where the loud discordant din had in no way abated.

At one side of a square or open place an immense marquee had been erected; and at this hour it was brilliantly lighted and thronged by a noisy crowd of all nations—Americans, Mexicans, Chinese, French, German, Spanish and British. The scene, as may be supposed, was wild and boisterous enough, and little in unison with the taste or feelings of our three friends, who so unwillingly found themselves in the midst of it.

The interior was, by the arrangement of the gaming table, divided into several compartments, and these were filled by groups playing at cards. All the features which characterise the gaming table were here shown in their fiercest and most repulsive aspects, but there was on the whole a recklessness and heedlessness of results such as are not manifested in similar "hells" in large towns. Those who lost did so with comparative indifference, being in full expectation that a few days' hard digging would find them once more in funds.
Nevertheless, there was much excitement, and that same feverish eagerness inseparable from the countenances of the different groups of players. Amid the bustle and absorbing nature of the game in which all were engaged, either as players or spectators, the three friends led by the Jew and the American, entered the marquee without their presence being particularly noticed. It was accordingly well known to many of those present, and as they passed through the rooms he was testily asked to take a hand at a game, but with a good-humoured smile and shrug shake of the head, he declined.

On the threshold of each apartment the group passed till the Jew and the American had scanned the interior in search of the man they sought, but it was not till they reached the entrance to the innermost that they described him. Here, however, their eyes lighted on him simultaneously, and they pointed him out to William and the others.

HOUSE OF COMMONS.

OTTAWA, May 14.

Sir John A. Macdonald gave notice of a resolution, that the Imperial Government having expressed its wish that the present salary of the Governor General should be maintained, in the opinion of the House the salary should be fixed at £10,000 sterling.

Mr. Rose brought down his resolutions embodying the new banking scheme, and made a long speech in support of them.
The resolutions will be taken up in committee on Friday next.

Mr. Rose moved that certain resolutions with respect to the rate of interest be considered on Friday next.—Carried.

Hon. Mr. Dorion moved an amendment for an address to the Governor General, setting forth the desirability of a renewal of Reciprocity with the United States.
After a brief discussion the debate was postponed till Tuesday.

As a local application in the numberless diseases to which the skin is liable, Dr. Briggs' Allevantor will prove superior to all the lotions, washes, liniments, cer-ates or ointments, commonly in use for such purposes. The Allevantor, from its composition is designed to accomplish a two-fold object, namely, through its emollient properties to soften and soothe inflamed and irritated surfaces and allay the distressing itching that accompany all eruptive diseases, and through its healthy stimulant effect to alter diseased action and enable the skin to resume its wonted smooth condition. There is nothing so desirable as a healthy and beautiful skin; therefore, a remedy that produces it, driving away all impurities, should be used at once. Sold by E.
Harvey & Co., Guelph. Dr. J. Briggs & Co., proprietors, 208 Broadway, N. Y., and No. 6 King Street, West, Toronto.

FATAL ACCIDENT.—John Irwin, foreman of the stove business at the G. W. R. station, Hamilton, met with death on Friday, by being thrown underneath a car, the wheels passing over his thigh and arm.

CELEBRATED

Perfected Spectacles!

AND EYE GLASSES.

The large and increasing sales of these PER-FECTED GLASSES is a sure proof of their superiority. We were satisfied that they would be appreciated here as elsewhere, and that the reality of their advantages offered to wearers of our beautiful lenses, viz: the ease and comfort, the assured and readily ascertain'd improvement of the sight, and the brilliant assistance they give in all cases, were in themselves so apparent on trial, that the result could not be otherwise than it has, in the almost general adoption of our Celebrated Perfected Spectacles by the residents of this locality. With a full knowledge of the value of the assertion, we claim that they are the most perfect optical aids ever manufactured. To those needing Spectacles, we afford at all times an opportunity of procuring the best and most desirable.
