

A Glimpse of Spring

Our First Exhibition of New Wash Goods

A showing of styles and weaves that excels anything before produced, wrapped about this early showing, that heralds the approach of another season is a certain charm and attractiveness that one seldom sees in cotton fabrics, perhaps because it is so refreshing to be reminded of the fragrant days of buds and blossoms that are coming on space, but most likely it is in the true merits of the Goods themselves. In this, our opening sale of Wash Goods, nothing but the newest weaves are shown, the most delicate tints and colorings, as well as dark grounds in stripes, checks and self colors, ox blood, new helio, new pinks, new blues, new greys, etc.

OBITUARY.

The late Annie Luto, who died at Aylmer on February 5th, 1900, in the 83rd year of her age, was the daughter of the late Abner Chase. She was born in 1817 in New York State and removed with her parents to this country in 1836, and settled on what is known as the Isaac Chase farm, one mile north of Sparta, in the township of Yarmouth. In the following year she was married to the late Samuel Mills, of Yarmouth, by whom she bore three children, William, of Sparta; Washington, of Bayham; and Mrs. Wm. Cole, of Sparta. Her husband died in 1846, leaving to the care of his young widow his aged and infirm parents, the father being blind, and an aged, crippled aunt. To support and care for these young children and these helpless old people was a severe task for one of the "weaker sex", but the task was well and lovingly performed by this heroic young woman. The father and mother referred to, each lived to the advanced age of ninety-five years. In addition to the heavy domestic cares, this woman managed most successfully a 200-acre farm. Shortly after the death of the aged people referred to, Mrs. Mills was united in marriage to the late John Luto, of South Dorchester, who had eight children by a former wife. One would suppose it a herculean task to mother this large family, but no task appears to have been beyond the efforts of this christian woman. She was a mother to these children in the truest sense of the word. There must have been love and duty well performed, not only on the part of this grand woman, but also on the part of the step-children, for it is a well authenticated fact that not a single unpleasantness occurred either during the earlier years of this relationship or after the children had grown to manhood and womanhood. The members of the Luto family were Dr. Luto and Gilbert, St. Thomas; Dr. A. Luto, Grand Rapids, Mich.; Frank, San Francisco, Cal.; Charles, Colorado; Mrs. J. C. Sherk, Kingston; Mrs. Chas. Learn, S. Dorchester; and Mary, of Aylmer. The last mentioned lived with her step-mother until the latter closed her work here below and went to her well earned rest. The deep devotion and affection that existed between these two true women were most touching, quite beyond the scenes pictured by writers of romance. The Luto family having attained somewhat prominent positions and to the highest respectability justly claim that their success in life was, at least, partly due to the efforts of the subject of this brief history. Dr. A. Luto, Grand Rapids, Mich., on learning of the death of his step-mother, forwarded a beautiful wreath and the following telegram, which shows the feeling the family bears towards the deceased. "Have placed on mother's coffin beautiful floral tribute, emblems of purity, typical of her life. Illness prevents my presence." What a model christian character was this woman's! Not only like Martha did she look well after the affairs of this life—not in a selfish greediness, but in a simple way adding to the comforts of those around her, but also like Mary, she "chose the better part" and lived such a practical christian life and let her light so shine that its reflections will not be extinguished possibly till time shall be no more.

The deceased in years gone by would occasionally relate some interesting reminiscence of the early days of this country, the adventurous trip through the forest coming to this country from York State, also incident in the rebellion of 1837-8. Her husband's people having been suspected of sympathizing with the rebels, her house was searched while she was ill in bed with a new born babe. The soldiers carried off all the provisions in the house, as well as a quantity of linen spun by herself on her little wheel.

The funeral cortege left her late residence on St. George street, Aylmer, at 11 o'clock, on Wednesday, Feb. 7th, and proceeded to the Friends meeting house, Sparta, where services were held, Rev. R. W. B. H. officiating at Aylmer, and James Pound and Edgar Haight at Sparta. A large concourse of people met at Aylmer and at Sparta to pay their respects to one who was so well known and revered in both localities.

A remarkable coincidence was that the funeral services of the deceased were held on the 33rd anniversary of her marriage to Mr. Luto, both ceremonies occurring on Feb. 7th, and both ceremonies being held in the Friends meeting house at Sparta.

The Red Rat's Daughter.

By Guy Boothby, author of Dr. Nikola's Experiment. (Published by the Copp, Clark Co., Limited, Toronto. Price, paper, 75 cts.; cloth, $1.25.)

Mr. Boothby is by no means unknown in the world of fiction, and the esteem in which he is held by his fellow authors was well voiced by Mr. Rudyard Kipling recently, when he remarked, "Mr. Guy Boothby has come to great honors now. His name is large upon boardings, his books sell like hot cakes, and he keeps a level head through it all. I've met him several times in England, and he added to my already large respect for him."

"The Red Rat's Daughter," is probably the author's best piece of work. It is a most exciting tale of the endeavors of a young Englishman to rescue his Polish fiancée's father from political imprisonment on the Siberian Island of Saghalien. The love story of these two young people is a most romantic one, and the mystery running through the whole book is well contrived, and concludes with an unusually cleverly managed surprise.

ADDITIONAL LOCALS.

Mr. Fred Smith purchased two fine three year old Jock colts last week for Mr. G. F. Carey, of Batavia, N. Y. One of them was raised by Mr. Geo. Gilbert, of Sparta, and the other by Mr. S. S. Harper, of Malahide, both of whom received a good price.

Mr. Wm. P. Summers and Mrs. Jas. A. Parker were united in marriage at the Methodist parsonage on Thursday last by the Rev. C. T. Scott. They have bought Mr. J. H. Cronk's fine cottage in St. Thomas, and will take up their residence there, followed by the best wishes of many friends.

A meeting of the stockholders of the Aylmer Manufacturing Co. was held in the council chamber on Thursday evening last when it was found that sufficient stock had been subscribed to warrant going on with the organization and securing a charter which Mr. E. A. Miller was authorized to do. The following provisional directors were appointed:—S. Pierce, W. S. Caron, J. J. Nairn, Mayor Glover, H. A. Miller, Mr. H. A. Ambridge was elected treasurer, and J. H. Glover secretary. Messrs. E. C. Jenkins and Chas. White for the company are now going over the stock, with Mr. Pierce, and valuing the same, prior to its being taken over.

On Tuesday evening last, after a painful illness of over a year and a half, Mr. Francis A. Hughes passed away at his home on the 8th concession in his 79th year. He was born in the township of Malahide in 1821. With the exception of seven years, he resided here the whole of his long life, and with the other hardy old pioneers of this section, converted this country from a howling wilderness, into one of the golden spots of the world. During the rebellion of 1837, he served in the defence of his country, and received an honorable discharge. At the age of 24 he united with the Aylmer Baptist church and remained a faithful member of the same to the time of his death. In politics he was a strong liberal, but gave others the same right to their own opinions, as he claimed himself. His aged partner in life survives him, and had Mr. Hughes lived for four hours longer, they would have travelled life's journey together for 53 years. Seven sons are also left, viz: Wm. E., of Malahide, Ambrose and Judson, of Mich., Harvey, of Buffalo, Dr. E., of Indiana, Marcellus and John at home, with two grand daughters also, Miss Mabel and Claudia. The funeral takes place this afternoon at 2 o'clock from his late residence to the Aylmer cemetery, where the remains will be interred.
