Remains of the Late Adam Murray Laid a Rest--Impressive Service at the First Presbyterian Church.

The remains of the late Adam Murray arrived in this city from Chicago about 10 o'clock this morning, and were immediately conveyed to the First Presbyterian Church. The casket was deeply covered with chrysanthemums and other beautiful flowers. A portion of the church was filled with former friends from this city, and many also from the country. Mr. Barron, organ-ist of the church, assisted in the services. Prayer was offered by Rev. J. Murray's firm friends during his latter years, spoke feelingly of his admir-able qualities. He said that it was unusual to have a funeral service in the church, but when word came of Mr. Murray's death it was the unanithere. Mr. Murray's position was a singular one. He had been a member of the church since 1835, and through all those years he had been anxious to do what was in his power to assist in advancing the Master's work. It had not been the speaker's pleasure to know Mr. Murray during his years of vigor, but all who had known him spoke of him as a man highly respectable, of the strictest rectitude in all his viduals would say nothing of him but take part in the symphony orchestra what was good. In speaking of his splendid mental equipment, Mr. Clark said that he had been told by the principal of Knox College, himself a capable man, that he had never met a man who had a clearer or more comprehensive grasp of the Calvillatic theory of theology than had Mr. Mur-There was nothing he delighted ray. in more than the deep things that belong to God. WEAK LUNGS NEED CONSTANT CARE.

The Slightest Cough or Cold should be Promptly Treated by Br. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup.

There are many people who have weak lungs and need to be constantly on their guard. The arch enemy of the raceconsumption-is ever ready to pounce upon those who neglect coughs and colds, and claim them as its victims. Those who catch cold easily should never put off treating a cough in its first stages by the use of Dr. Wood's Nerway Pine Syrup. It will not only cure the cough quickly, but the healing balsamic properties of the pine it contains will strengthen the lungs and help them to resist cold. Miss Grace Lynch, Blackville, N. B., writes: "I have been troubled with coughs, colds and weakness of the lungs for a long time and could get no relief

ROMANTIC AFFAIR

In Which a Popular London Young Lady Figures.

Is Said to Have Left the City and Married Young Englishman--Story of a Pretty Romance.

About five months ago a young Englishman came to Canada and went to a farm near Woodstock, where he was to engage in the learning of agricultural pursuits, after the fashion of so many young scions of English families. His name was David Howard. He was a pleasant-speaking chap, of agreeable manner and apparently well educated. His appearance gave color to the story that he told, that of being the son of an exceedingly rich merchant in Liverpool. The climate of England did not agree with him, so he had been sent to Canada to recuperate. Howard was not content with farm life, so he moved to this city, and worked for a while in a bank here. Some months ago his name and that of a young musical student here were frequently mentioned together, and at one time there was a widespread rumor that there had been a clandestine marriage and elopement. Subsequent events proved that this was not so, and that Mr. Howard only had gone away for a short time. He returned soon afterwards, and their intimacy became more marked than ever. They decided to marry, and leave the city. A date was decided upon and preparations for departure hastened. They determined that they would seek their fortune in Detroit. When the first rumor gained credence, the young lady's father, who lives in the northern Huron district, was made aware of "the state" of affairs. He visited the city, and met his daughter's suitor. A stormy scene resulted. Subsequently, however, Mr. Howard is supposed to have met the father by arrangement, and proved to his satisfaction that he was really whom he claimed to be, the only son of a rich man, and that he desired to marry the daughter. As to his future outlook, he was already receiving a handsome allowance from home, and he expected to receive an immense sum from his father. So it was settled, and Monday was set as the day for the departure from London. Yesterday morning young Howard was in jubliant spirits. He said that he had just received $5,000 from his father, with permission to travel in the States, and orders to meet him next summer in New York. Instead of carrying out the parental injunction, he decided to go to Detroit, invest in a business, marry the girl he loved, and the future would be one rosy dream-if his father did not cut him off, a possibility that he hat-ed to think about. If business did not suit him, he would go on the stage. In England he had often taken part in private theatricals and, so he said, had received an offer of a part in George Edwards' London produc-tion of "The Runaway Girl." His intended bride could sing also, so they wouldn't starve, anyway. His fair sweetheart would rather be married where her parents could be present. be married He didn't care where they were mar-He mentioned incidentally that Monday evening's train to Detroit would suit him, and the young tady told a friend that she was going to Detroit last night. Belgian Traveler Tells of the Terrible Scenes

That Came Under His Own Observation in the Amur River.

London, Nov. 13 .- The Globe this afternoon publishes a letter from a Belgian gentleman, who has been traveling to Pekin via the Trans-Siberian Railroad. He describes, under date of Sept. 6, what he saw in the Amur River. His account surpasses in horror those previously published. "The scenes I have witnessed during the three days since the steamer left Blagovetchensk," he says, "are horrible beyond the powers of description. It is the closing tableaux of a fearful human tragedy. "Two thousand were deliberately drowned at Moro, 2,000 at Raba, and 8,000 around Blagovetchensk, a total of 12,000 corpses encumbering the river, among which were bodies of women and children. Navigation was all but impossible.

"Last week a boat had to plow her way through a tangled and mangled mass of corpses, tashed together by their long hair. The banks were literally covered with corpses. In the curves of the stream were dark, putrid, smelling masses of human flesh and bone, surging and swaying in the steamer's wake and wash. The captain vainly ordered full speed ahead. The sight and smell will be aver with

From Blagovetchensk to Aigun, 45 kilometers, numerous villages studded the banks, with a thriving, industrious population of over 100,000. That of Aigun was 20,000. No one will ever know the number of those who perished by shot, sword and stream. Not a village is left. The silence of death was around us. Tomorrow evening those Londoners who are at all musically inclined will have the first opportunity of hearing Miss Dora Taylor sing-that is, of course, the new Dora Taylor, for she has returned from New York so completely changed in all except her own womanly self, that only those who new and admired her before she went to the metropolis, can appreciate how vastly she has improved. voice is so much stronger," she

They were truly delighted, and Fire which started from an unknown well might they be, for the singer is cause Saturday night in the fashionundoubtedly the finest artist who has ever claimed London as her home. When asked of her experiences in New York, she said:

"Well, you know, I studied first with Signor Agremonte, and then with Lewis Arthur Russell. They are great masters. I worked hand-very, hard. There are so many there, peal this morning dismissed the appeal and I had to work hard to succeed. of Rev. J. C. Ash in his suit against It was worth it, though," she added, smillingly, "for the improvement has been absolutely wonderful."

Her success was such that she had the distinction several times of blending her glorious contralto with the voices of famous artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company, among them being Clementine de Vere. She sang also with J. H. McKinley, who is famed as a tenor throughout America. With many other well-known singers she has appeared, and she has sung "I go from here to Oneida New York," she said. "On Friday I sing Saturday I go to New Work to sing at a musicale that is being given in the Park Church. Mrs. Van Renssalaer, one of New York's social leaders, is president of the club that is giving it.' Further conversation showed that Miss Taylor is not content with the success she has already gained. She is boundlessly ambitious. She has already attained a height so far beyond what she had dared to hope for, yet her remark, "I must study more and more," spoken so determinedly, made it apparent that she proposes to reach a still higher plane of artistic success and who shall say, after hearing her magnificent voice, after enjoying the charm of her personality, that her desire will not be accomplished?
