The present chilly spell has thrown a sort of wet blanket on the ardor of the miniature gardeners, but just as soon as the sun bursts forth again the outdoor work will be resumed with renewed vigor. At present, when lawns ing and cultivating flowers and shrubs, and gardens occupy so much of the popular attention, a few suggestions as to how to beautify the premises of an average home will not be out of

One Suggestion. To improve a back yard, the first consideration should be to have a good lawn, which should be in the center of the garden, and should be graded with a slope, so as to carry all surplus water away. Having done this satisfactorily, your next object is to beautify your boundaries, such as fences, walls and outbuildings. Dig a border thee feet wide, running along the fence and enrich, with good soil, to the depth of 18 inches. Where space is limited no trees or shrubs should be planted on the lawn. All planting should be done in border. Next to the fence have grape vines, Virginia creeper and honeysuckle; also rambler roses. which are permanent and improve each year. The first season plant annua! vines with them, such as morning glory, wild cucumber, scarlet beans, Madeira vines, nasturtium, which grow quickly and soon cover a fence. Next to vines plant tall flowers-hollyhocks sunflowers, native asters, phlox, gold The last named is a grand plant to hide a fence, and multiplie rapidly and is also very hardy.
