DISTRESS IN EUROPE

British Empire Effort to Help Smaller Nations.

Canadian Red Cross to Organize Appeal on Behalf of Orphan-Club to Be Made in Armistice Week.

An urgent appeal for aid to combat the widespread disease and distress in the war-stricken areas in Europe has been made by the League of Red Cross Societies to the nations which have suffered least from the war. In response a War Relief Fund has been undertaken in Great Britain with an Empire-wide appeal for contributions. The Fund is under the immediate patronage of His Majesty the King and has the support of all parts of the Empire.

His Excellency, the Governor-General of Canada, having received communications from London upon this matter, commended the Prime Minister, and with his approval referred the question to the Canadian Red Cross Society, and it was arranged for an appeal to be made in Canada during Armistice week in November. The Fund will be known as "The British Empire War Relief Fund."

To Make Known the Need.

The Canadian Red Cross Society accepted the task of this appeal and knows throughout Canada only in view of the relentless circumstances and the human desire to help to alleviate the terrible suffering of a large number of peoples. The ravages are numerous and compelling. Large populations are suffering from distress and disease. Millions of innocent children are among them. Even in time of peace great numbers of the people live in poverty and distress. The war drained them of all their surplus resources. Through the years of strife they were denied what the bare necessities, and their condition now is pitiful indeed. History records that the diseases which took their fearful toll of human life after the Thirty Years' War, the Seven Years' War (1757-65), and the Napoleonic Wars are again widespread, and now there are millions of children in Galicia, Poland, Jugoslavia and Roumania who, in addition to being poor, are in the direct misery and despair on account of disease. In some twelve countries, most of which were either Allies or friendly to the Allied cause, modern civilization is faced with the inevitable consequences of a great war through partial famine and pestilence.

A Province Upheavals.

That the epidemic is now one of alarming proportions and terrible in its effect was noted from the following statement from "The Times": "At present the worst results of the epidemic are confined to Galicia, where the epidemic has been in progress since the outbreak of the war. The whole community is faced with starvation, whilst the absence of clothing and drugs makes it impossible for the authorities to make any headway against the epidemic. Here we have a country into which the idea of modern civilization has never penetrated; for the most part there is no water supply in the smaller towns and villages, whilst the work of sewers is done by open gutters running through the streets. There are no doctors, no nurses, no beds, and the miserable typhus-stricken patients lie unattended on the bare floor. The poorest of the rural districts, where families exist in miserable one-roomed huts, their diet consisting of starvation rations of potatoes and bread, both bread and meat being luxuries rarely seen. In almost every part there are several cases of typhus and in many instances whole families are stricken with the disease, and are perforce left to the unaided."

Many Countries are Suffering.

What is said of Galicia is true of other countries of Europe such as Belgium, Lithuania, Latvia, huge territories of the Ukraine, Soviet Russia, Jugoslavia and Czechoslovakia. Nor is typhus the only affliction. Tuberculosis, smallpox, dysentery and relapsing fever are also ravaging large areas.

Lack of Medical Aid.

These terrible conditions have been called to the attention of the people of the British Empire in a statement by the Right Hon. Arthur J. Balfour, who, speaking for the Council of the League of Nations, says:

"Men, women and children are dying by thousands, and over vast and civilized areas there are neither medical appliances nor medical skill sufficient to cope with the horrors by which we are faced. Governments have in certain cases done all in their power to bring relief, but there remains a vast field for charitable enterprise which can be dealt with only by voluntary effort."

Seven Million Orphans.

Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross, who has just returned from Europe, states that there are 11,000,000 fatherless children in Europe who face the next few years without hope of adequate care unless outside assistance is given.

For Suffering Children.

No stronger call would be made to humanity than that of suffering children, and on their behalf particularly the Canadian Red Cross will appeal throughout Canada during Armistice week. Each provincial branch of the Red Cross will have charge of the arrangements in its own province, and all Red Cross workers should put themselves into touch immediately with their local branch or with the headquarters of the Provincial Division if no local branch is organized.

MADAME ARTHUR BEAUCHER
808 Carlier St., Montreal.

"I suffered terribly from Constipation and Dyspepsia for many years. I felt pains after eating and had gas, constant headache, and was unable to sleep at night. I was getting so thin that I was frightened and saw several physicians who, however, did not seem able to help me.

At last a friend advised me to take 'Fruit-a-tives'. I did so and soon I felt some relief. I continued with 'Fruit-a-tives' and in a short time, the Constipation was banished. I felt no more pains or headache or the disagreeable sensations that follow dyspepsia. Now I am well, strong and vigorous."

IF YOUR CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH, CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, or some little bowels with "Oust-Down" Syrup or "Figs."

Medicine can run up after giving "California Syrup of Figs," because in a few hours all the sluggish waste, sour bile and fermenting food gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

That children need to be moved to take this harmless "Bile Laxative" because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups.

An Old Reliable Remedy
Mrs. S. Fawcett, Hamilton St. College, Oshawa, Ont., writes: "Minard's Liniment is an old reliable remedy. I always keep a bottle in the house and have recommended it to quite a number of my friends to whom it gave great relief. In most cases it was used as a cure for rheumatism."

BARON PETER WRANGEL

PIN SKETCH OF NEW RUSSIAN LEADER.

Canadian Airman Who Was Formerly a Well-Known Lacrosse Player Gives His Impression of the Man Selected by the French as the Man Best Able to Overthrow the Power of the Bolsheviks.

BARON PETER WRANGEL is the man nominated by France to apply the Allied pressure against Bolshevism. A more capable man could not be chosen in Russia. Just before Denikin's final evacuation of South Russia, Gen. Wrangel had been relieved of his command, because he had dealt too severely with a looting officer who was also assisting Denikin, and Colliard's 47th Squadron, which was the most of its work under his command on the Volga river, gave him a dinner in Novorossiysk.

Shortly afterwards Wrangel refused transport to Constantinople, but elected to flee to the Crimea with a faithful following, where he found the nucleus of the present anti-Bolshevik army.

I shall never forget the splendid appearance Wrangel made at this dinner. A man over six feet three inches, coming to tower much higher with his huge Cossack fur cap, with piercing features, eagle nose, flashing eyes, he looked every inch a leader. Ruthless? Yes! but in a country where to be not ruthless, to stay the head of punishment, is to fail.

Wrapped in his picturesque uniform of Don Cossacks, he made a speech of half an hour (through an interpreter), which he delivered denouncing those who had slandered him. It had been rumored that Wrangel had strong German sympathies. He denied that he had a drop of German blood in him, that he was for Russia and Russia alone, but that he would not hesitate to accept aid from Germany or any other country which would help Russia to get rid of her present thralldom of misery. He stated what a bitter disappointment it had been to loyal Russians that Britain has failed to give the promised aid.

To appreciate Wrangel, the impossibility of getting anything done must be borne in mind. The Russian is impracticable, a procrastinator, and will promise indefinitely if not forced to act. Wrangel found that the surest way to secure promptitude among the station masters along the railways, many of whom had Bolshevik tendencies, was to hang them from their own station. His fame soon spread and he was able to get troop trains when needed.

I happened to be in Kharkov when there was a conspiracy of some of the Kharkov Cossacks, who were Wrangel's adherents out of the state. A secret meeting was a surprise to the leaders who captured the conspirators, and the conspirators were hanged in the full view of the crowd. The Wrangel returned to the front again.

At another time, when Wrangel was south, the Bolsheviks drove near Tzaritsin and the town was imperiled. Wrangel was sent for. He arrived in time. He had a couple of his subordinate officers who were quarrelling over loot, and by the force of his presence, checked the quarrel and pushed them back in two days.

I have not mentioned these incidents to prove Wrangel brutal, as he is not the drunken, swaggering type common among a certain class of Russian officers; on the contrary, he is a sober, serious man—but to show how he administers justice to Russia with an iron hand and does not hesitate to give object lessons to people who see only outward show. He has a magnetism which makes people respect him, and he is given any sort of desert which will do more for Russia than anyone.

It is often asked, "How did Wrangel survive?" A glance at the map of the Crimea will explain. Landing in Theodosia with a few followers he was shortly in command of a considerable number of refugee officers and men. Happily, he was able to re-equip at Theodosia from the British base there. In so long he had subjected the Crimea, which is sparsely inhabited, and could easily defend the narrow isthmus which joins the peninsula to the mainland against all the attacks of the Bolsheviks.

Since the Bolsheviks have been busy with the Poles he has been advanced, retaken Alexander, Mariupol, Taganrog, Berdy, and forced the Reds to abandon Novorossiysk, Ekaterinodar and the whole of the Kuban state. So that Baron Wrangel is really the logical head of any force which will be used against the Bolsheviks.

In a speech Wrangel stated that the form of government he desired was one based on that of Britain. The peninsula in Russia must have a royal prerogative to look up to as a little father, and this would be the same whether his position was only nominal or not. Then the actual form of government could be worked out and would in time put the real power into the hands of a people who as yet cannot, through ignorance, be trusted to govern themselves. As it is now, Bolshevism is a greater tyranny than tsardom ever was.—H. S. Morton, Royal Naval Air Force.
