The Gladstone Government is again the object of savage criticism because of its failure to adopt the great naval program. SPEAKERS AND AUDIENCES.

If the Press gave a little gentle criticism nov and then on the methods of our public speakers there is no doubt that there would be fewer in-cidents similar to that of the recent Board of Trade banquet. A public speaker who is trespassing on the time of from two to five hundred passing on the time of trom two the listeners ought to know that if he wastes or oversteps one minute he wastes in the aggregate two to five hundred minutes of the time of his audience, and if he consumes an unnecessary hour he has trified with five hundred hours of the time of busy men and women! Surely this view of it must give him pause.

When there are three men in a program t speak for one class or subject the time ought mainly to be given to one, and the others should almost the exclusive talk in the House this be complementary (in the mathematical sense) to him. At the Board of Trade dinner every one knew that Mr. Foster was the talker of the knew that Mr. Foster was the talker of the Government present, moreover the most appropriate as to his department, and the one the audience wished to hear, and the other of his colleagues should have had the foresight to fit into him. It is the lack of such foresight that mars so many of our meetings.

At the unveiling of the portraits at the University on Saturday, though the proceedings covered just two hours, there was also a trace visible of this lack of proportion. In speaking of the late Prof. Young many good things were said; but as Mr. John A. Patterson's excellent to the late Prof. Young many good things were said; but as Mr. John A. Patterson's excellent to the late Prof. Young many good things were said; but as Mr. John A. Patterson's excellent of the late Prof. Young many good things were said; but as Mr. John A. Patterson's excellent address covered the ground, some of the other speakers repeated the same ideas. Also it was a little too sombre. Prof. Hutton is, we take it, a model speaker, and makes us think at once that they do these things better in England. He adroitly livened up the proceedings by a reference to Prof. Croft's easy treatment of students, under examination, and Mr. lings by a reference to Prof. Croft's easy treatment of students under examination, and Mr. Blake was quick to take up the same string when his turn came. Even a memorial service can be soo heavy and sombre, and a flower in the Governor's button hole, and in at least one of the other speakers, lent a little more color to the proceedings. Railroad has issued a little placard that has interest. It depicts the first engine run on interest. It depicts the first engine run on that line in 1831, and the best known one run on the line this year. The maximum speed of the engine three score years ago was fifteen miles per hour; that of the great engine now run is over 100 miles an hour. It is an object-lesson in the evolution of the locomotive, is this neat little advertisement of the American railroad.—Newcastle (England) Daily Chronicle.

Can't Pay Sugar Bounties Out of NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 14. - A memorial wa issued here last night signed by the leading issued here last night signed by the leading members of the sugar exchange and planters, to petition Congress to bring about the immediate payment of the sugar bounty. The memorial says a vast number of people are absolutely dependent upon the immediate undertaking of the crop of 1894, and the money to prosecute the work can only come from the bounty money. The bounty money for 1893, barring a few thousand dollars, has not been paid, and the Government is now indebted to the planters of this state for more than to the planters of this state for more than $15,000,000. The Louisiana delegation in response to inquiries telegraphed yesterday that the reason that the bounty was not naid was that the treasury was empty.

A JEWISH WEDDING. An Interesting Service at the Auditorium Yesterday. The ancient Hebraic marriage ceremony

Moses. With the observance of all these customs Leah Isaacson and Mark Kayfetz were married yesterday afternoon.

The Auditorium, which has of late been given up to political meetings, was gladdened by the merry-makings of the bridal party. Custom calls for the gathering of all the friends at the wedding and the spacious hall was releated to accommodate them. was selected to accommodate them.
At 5 o'clock the hall was filled. The men

The bride in the regulation white veil was the centre of attraction. She was escorted by her mother and sisters. The groom, resplendent in a shining silk tile and Prince Albert coat, seemed not more at ease than the millions of men who have gone before him. Rabbi Ichapena performed the ceremony, which was in Hebrew. After the ring had been placed upon Mrs. Kayfetz' finger the party proceeded to the banqueting hall, where a sumptuous banquet was prepared. At the
