WEEKLY MONITOR WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1897 -A Kings county potato exporter told the MONITOR editor recently that the potato shipments to Havana this season had netted a fairly good thing. There was consid-erable doubt about the financial soundness of the market which has had the effect of keeping it from being glutted; consequently sold aligneet, arriving on a bare market, has sold at good figures and there has been no difficulty in realizing prompt returns. Will the churches, generally, adopt the movement, is the question? They are forthcoming for the purpose. The im portance of the first step is not to be forgotten and it looks like the first step in one of the greatest reforms of the century. None will gainsay the growing need of a more practical christianity and its development will be watched with interest. -WHILE India was saved from the great est calamity of the century by the copious rains of the closing weeks of 1896, the situation in that country is still a very grave one. Famine still stares the people in the face; already relief has been given by the federal government to 750,000 persons, and the crisis has not yet arrived. The govern ment are locking the matter squarely in the ace and decline to appeal to private charity. The Viceroy, the Earl of Elgin, announces that the government is thoroughly impressed with the sense of its duties, and that the full resources of the Empire will be used for relieving distress. Fortunately the resources of the Empire are considered ample to meet the requirements of the case, and the heroic measures adopted by the government should preclude the usual rayages of disease and death that usually follow in the wake of failure of crops and consequent famine.
