

RABBITS & PETS

The lop-ear rabbit is the aristocrat of the "bunny" family, and of late years has been brought to an amazing degree of perfection.

The Himalayan is probably the prettiest—white, with black points—and as far as we know is not to be had in Canada. This is a field some enterprising rabbit man should take hold of. He would certainly find it one of both interest and profit.

A good standing diet for rabbits is oats, bran, carrots and hay. The first in the morning, the second (hot) at night (if mixed with milk don't they like it? Oh! my!) The third at noon, and a plentiful supply of the latter at all times. For a staple regimen you cannot go beyond this; but of course it will need variation.

The Cavey, or as it is more commonly called the Guinea pig, is fast growing in favor in England, and is at many shows provided with several classes.

It is hardy, prolific, easily reared and kept, and an important point to a young fancier whose wallet is by no means plethoric, can be procured for a very trifling sum. They may be fed and housed exactly as rabbits are.

USE GUEST'S ROUP —OR— TONIC AND CONDITION PILLS.

If your fowls or pigeons have Roup, even if almost dying, give one Pill every day, for four or five days.

They are especially suited for Roup, Roup diseases, Bad Moulting, Bad Fledging, Weak Young Pigeons, Chickens, Turkeys or Ducks, &c. For General Unhealthiness in Birds, either young or full grown. Skin diseases, Inflammatory diseases, Colds, with great difficulty of Breathing. Indigestion, Cramp, Pip, when Apoplexy is feared, and going Light if given before the vital organs are too much affected. As a Tonic give an occasional dose when required. For pain and inflammation in the Egg-producing organs. When used for Egg-bound, oil must also be applied in the usual way. For weakness and prostration from Overlaying. For Scour and Diarrhea in Chickens, young Pigeons, Turkeys, &c. Canker, Leg-weakness.

Since the introduction into Canada of these Pills, the Agent has received numerous letters from Fanciers all over the Dominion endorsing the Pills in the highest manner.

Sold in Packets for 25 Cents and One Dollar.
