

cies and NGOs. Since all observers have acknowledged inadequate and culturally-insensitive planning, poor project definition, and the lack of adequate monitoring and evaluation as causes of the disappointing impact of TC and aid in general, these missions are of great significance and should receive appropriate preparation in advance. The increasing contracting out of aid delivery reinforces this need to make the most of the program planning and evaluation role of development officers in aid agencies.