brother, and now you would confer a favor by advising the creditors to take hold of the estate for the benefit of all. Cleghora will send you a list of them. You may think it strange for me to have no insurance, but when they ask 44 per cent., it is rather high a figure, and also think strange of me leaving, but the fact of the matter is we could not have pulled through had we not lost, as the business in Winnipeg is everdone, and if we are the first, I am sure you will see one-half go before the fall, as they are working in all shapes to get rid of stocks. I don't know yet where I will go. I may go off to Montana, U.S., but will write you again. I expect to get the name of making a big haul, but I assure you I gave my family more a good deal to go to Winnipeg last fall. I am only sorry I could not get a little more out of it to help me off, but intend to go at anything that I can get to do for a while. Trusting you will believe me, as of old, and do what I request now." Expectations as to results are not over sanguine.

business he would scarcely have been deemed so good a "mark." The list of liabilities shows over twenty creditors, including one in Toronto, one in London, and two in Winnipeg. The people in Stanstead, Que., will doubtless have some recollection of Mr. Oliver. On the 8th inst. he wrote from St. Vincent, Minn., to a gentleman in this city the following letter:—It is with much regret I write you this from here, but as you have heard I lost more than my all by fire I have made up my mind to leave the whole thing and commence anew amongst strangers.
I have left farm, crops and everything, and left the store and stock with A. Cleghora, James'
