AT OSOODE HALL

The Case of Dobbin v. Dobbin, a Family Matter, was heard by Judge O'Connor at the Osode Hall.

Mr. James S. Cartwright, sitting for the Master in Chambers, has delivered an interesting judgment upon the plaintiff's motion for interim alimony in Dobbin v. Dobbin. He says the papers filed on the application present the usual case of domestic infidelity, arising, it seems, from the conduct of children of the former marriage of the husband and wife. The evidence is clear, however, that the husband has acted generously to the wife in securing her a joint life interest with herself in his farm, and that the wife has been guilty of adultery, and as it is contradictory, it is not possible to say whether the plaintiff left the defendant, or whether the defendant deserted the plaintiff. The present case differs from others because here the plaintiff has as much means as her husband, and she can take the ordinary legal steps to enforce her right to receive half the joint property. In the latter case, Master's opinion of the whole matter is really more a question than anything else. Charges of adultery are freely made, but it is not possible to say whether the plaintiff left the defendant, or whether the defendant deserted the plaintiff. Editor of World: Kindly allow me, through your esteemed journal, to call the attention of the municipal council to an important matter. The City Council, by unanimous vote, has decided to submit to the electors on Monday next the following question: "Are you in favor of having municipal elections in Toronto held on New Year's Day?" There are a great many citizens who carry on their regular daily employment at long distances from the place of election, and who are entitled to vote. At present they are forced to exercise their franchise at an inconvenient time, and in many cases financial loss, owing to the time that it takes them to get to the polls and back to their work. It sometimes happens that the first Monday in January, which day elections are now held, falls on New Year's Day. In such cases, many citizens are unable to vote, and the result is a less than a fair representation of the electorate. If elections were regularly held on New Year's Day, all of the citizens who are entitled to vote would be able to do so, and the result would be a more accurate representation of the electorate. The proposal is endorsed by the Trades and Labor Council, and by the various trade unions. It is a simple and practical suggestion, and it is one that should be adopted by the City Council. I am, Sir, very respectfully, your obedient servant, F. S. Spence.

Contagious Diseases in Ontario. The monthly report of the Provincial Board of Health, showing the deaths from contagious diseases in Ontario, is out. The total deaths returned from the several counties for the month of December, 1896, were 107. The returns for the cities reporting, calculated on a per capita basis, with a population of 1,300, give 76 deaths. Of the cities making returns, Windsor returned no deaths from contagious diseases. The total towns reporting, with a population of 770,884, in the same basis, show 51 deaths, and the towns of Hamilton, London, and Perth, each returned one death from the following causes: Carleton, Lambton and Perth.
