LEAFS HAD HOLIDAY RAIN AT ROCHESTER

Joe Schultz Signed for Utility Role-Gossip of the Players.

Rain stopped the Leafs from playing at Hochester yesterday.

Rain stopped the Leas from playing at Hochester yesterday.

Cravath, Chase, Bancroft, Hornsby and Robertson comprise one-half of last week's ten leading sluggers in the National League, Cactus Cravath, of course, is the "king bee" of the lot, with six home runs and numerous other extrabase drives. Some have branded Cravath a "home-lot" slugger, because he so frequently pokes the ball over the fence of the Phillies' notoriously short outfield. But his performances in other parks indicate that Gabby's drives would his over the fence or hit the wails just the same if they lengthened the field at Quakertown.

The newest addition to the league's ten leading sluggers is Flai Chase, who for the last week or two has been batting his way toward the 300 class at a great rate. His average is now 289, as compared will 274 a week ago. In 11 successive games up to and including Thursday's contest, the veteran first-secker of the Cincinnati Reds made 16 hits, failing to connect in only two. These included six doubles, four triples and a home run. On Memorial Day it was his bat that enabled the Reds to divide the holiday bill with the Cardinalis, when he made a double, a triple and a circuit clout and scored three runs himself in the first game.

Eancroft of the Quakers, and Robertson of the New York Glants, are not carrying averages of particular note, but they have a habit of "busting" the ball to distant sections of the outfield when there are men on the bases.

Hornsby, the St. Louis Cardinalis' prize infielder, who almost led the league in hitting last year, also seldom wastes a blow. Sixteen of his 29 hits this season have driven in runs, and he is climbing steadily up the batting column. He now has a percentage of 276.

It is announced that Joe Schultz has

Catcher Earl Blackburn, of the Leafs, returned to Toronto from Rochester to rest for a few days. He has a badly split finger. He will probably remain here until the Leafs come home next

Dusty Bullock, the St. Thomas professional ball player, who was to have gone to Memphis, owing to the trouble at the border in connection with leaving the country, has decided to remain in the Ontario city for the season, and will form a semi-pro ball team for the city. Gil Fergue. Fred Gadsby and other former Canadian Leaguers will be played with line-up. Games will be played with London, Chatcham, Windsor, Woodstock, and semi-pro teams from Detroit and Buffalo. The boys are working out each evening and rapidly rounding into shape.

Two members of the Pirate pitching staff have shown a continued run of high-chass pitching since the season opened. They are Harold Carlson and Emer Jacobs. The former has won three and lost two games, but one of his defeats should not have been accompished under the circumstances. Carlson was charged with a set-back in Chicago after holding the pesky Cubs to two hits while his mates were making II and drawing six bases on balls off the delivery of Jim Vaughn. However, they left 16 runners stranded on the base-paths and the youngster went down with the rest of the heap. Little was heard of Carlson before the Pittsburgers went finto spring training this year, but the budding boy seems to have blossomed into a dependable major league pitcher in a few short weeks.

Binghamton is leading the New York State League with 15 victories. John Miljus won five of them. Here is a big strong boy who is destined to shine in

NOTHING IN STORY SAYS BAN JOHNSON

The semi-monthly story that Washington is to lose its franchise in the American League was circulated from New York yesterday. It was claimed in the despatch that a meeting of the National League and the Johnson moguls had been held, and that it was decided to move Clark Griffiths' toam to another city. Brooklyn, Baltimore and Toronto were named as the cities that could support big league bail.

Ban Johnson came out with a flat-footed denial in New York last night, and said that the Washington franchise will remain in the American capital until after the war, at least. He said it would not be moved while, the country was facing its fight for right and liberty, and sentimental reasons alone would save it for Washington.

There is no doubt that Toronto will get a major league franchise at some future date, but the time is not yet. With Canada's sons playing the big game on the fields of Flanders, it would certainly be unwise to attempt the undertaking now.

The plans for the improvement of Toronto's waterfront include a bridge across the western gap to hook up the city with the island. With the war over, and the bridge up, Toronto would royally support a major league team, and that would be the time to get out and hustle for the big show.
