HOME FROM HALIFAX.

William Donahue, coachman, arrived from Halifax last evening with his wife and nephew. His little niece and nephew are dead in the stricken city.
Dr. H. Hedden last night said that the most of the difficult operating in serious cases had been done and the need at present was for nurses.
Dr. A. P. Crockett said last night that 60 per cent of the cases being treated in hospitals now were eye cases. This was explained by the fact that at the explosion everyone ran to the windows and when the concussion shattered the glass the pieces penetrated their eyes.
Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Connelly arrived in the city last night from Halifax.

MEETING OF W. C. T. U.

The annual county convention of the W. C. T. U. was held yesterday afternoon in the Orange Hall, Germain street. The president, Mrs. R. D. Christie, occupied the chair.

The devotional exercises were led by Mrs. M. Seymour, assisted by Mrs. D. Hipwell. Rev. W. D. Wilson, chief inspector of New Brunswick, gave an encouraging report. He commented on the fact that the Catholic clergy on the North Shore stood firmly behind the inspectors in the enforcing of the prohibitory law.

A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Wilson for his address. The secretary, Mrs. H. Deamer, read reports from the various unions. This was followed by a pleasing solo by Mrs. Geo. Bell, with Miss M. Fox as accompanist. A resolution from the Fredericton W. C. T. U. was adopted. It is against gambling for patriotic purposes. A resolution was also passed against the violation of the Lord's day.

The following officers were elected: Mrs. R. D. Christie, president; Mrs. Geo. Fowler, vice-president; Mrs. H. Deamer, secretary-treasurer.

THE CAREER OF CARUSO.

"Italy may claim him as the land of his birth," writes Mary H. Flint in "Caruso and His Art," a souvenir volume with portraits of ten of the tenor's famous roles, "but he belongs to America, for it is here, on our soil, under our skies, amidst our surroundings, that he has developed into what he is today." Enrico Caruso was born in Naples in 1873, says the volume's foreword, which adds some facts of his career less often recorded.

Naturally he sang when a boy, for all Italian boys sing, but he had grown almost to manhood before he thought of a professional career. When a little over 20 years old he made his debut "in an unimportant role in a provincial theatre." One of his first engagements outside of Italy was in Plume, and later he sang in Russia, Monte Carlo, Portugal, South America, and London, reaching the goal of all Italian singers—La Scala in Milan—in 1909.

Caruso was about thirty years old when he came to the Metropolitan. He was not heralded as a world wonder, for while the velvet voice and the marvelous phrasing immediately aroused admiration, he was still handicapped historically. Perhaps it was his years of hard work, perhaps the atmosphere of America, that stimulated him, for here his progress as an actor was rapid, and while the voice grew richer and fuller and smoother, the tenor came to be a wonderful interpreter of his roles, and the idol of the American public.

"Heretofore the rank of the world's greatest singer has always been held by a woman," Mrs. Flint concludes. "No man ever approached Caruso's unique

CHOICE GIFTS OF SILVERWARE

If she were choosing her own Christmas gift she undoubtedly would choose a dainty piece of Silverware — and she would choose it here.

First—because Silverware always appeals to the feminine heart.

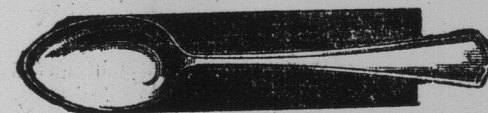

Secondly—because she knows that what she chooses here carries with it an assurance of quality and value.
