CANADIAN OFFICIAL WAR PHOTOGRAPHS London, Dec. 7.—Sir George Peabody was present when the exhibition of the Canadian official war photographs was opened. Many familiar faces are to be recognized in these photographs. One named "The Last Post," shows the Rev. Canon Stafford of Montreal, reading the burial service over a soldier's grave. The exhibition will be sent to Canada. The pictures, comprising really remarkable depictions of the life of the Canadian troops at the front, were secured by Sir Max Aitken's staff and include the king's visit, the shelling of Corneille and the Canadians charging over the parapet. Princess Patricia visited the gallery. According to a Leipzig estimate, 11,480 German school teachers fell in the war up to the end of September, though a Zurich message avers "that this figure is really much too low."
