MEN OF THE 26TH CARRY OUT WAR MANOEUVRES

An interesting tactical scheme was executed yesterday afternoon by the members of the 26th Battalion, when they conducted "war" manoeuvres in the vicinity of the three mile house. A force of Germans numbering about 200 were supposed to be seeking to march to the border through the woods, under Captain Dunfield Von Moltke, and the object of a force under Major MacKenzie French was to intercept them. They succeeded in doing this, capturing the invaders, but not until difficult manoeuvers patterned after modern warfare had been carried out. The proceedings were under the direction of the O. C., Lieut.-Col. McAvity, with Captain Brown acting as umpire.

MAINE'S SHORE FISH VALUABLE

Commissioner Woodbury Says Catch Amounted to $11,000,000 in Last Two Years

The 33rd report of the commissioner of sea and shore fisheries, covering the years 1913 and 1914, just made to Gov. Haines by Com. Henry D. S. Woodbury, of South Portland, places the value of $11,000,000 on the catch of fish in Maine for that period and gives the number employed in the industry as 8,937, while the total number of persons dependent on the industry is 50,000.

Com. Woodbury's report takes up all the branches of the industry, and makes recommendations. With 2,000 miles of Maine coast under the supervision of only about twenty-four wardens, the commissioner states that the strict observance of the fishing laws can only be attained through the co-operation of the fishermen themselves and expresses the hope that they will realize and appreciate the dependence of the future of the industry on themselves.

"The demand for sea food is so great," he says, "that without doubt the fishermen are faced by strong temptation. The observance of the laws, however, will work out to their own benefit."

According to his report $6.058.55 was the amount collected by his department in fines for the two years; $511.46 of which was colected in 1913, and $4,312.09 besides which $235 was turned in direct to the state treasurer.

Lobster Fry Planted

The report shows that 180,500,000 fry were planted in Maine in 1914, of which 1,000,000 were planted at South Portland, and 6,000,000 in Portland harbor.

Taking up the different branches of the industry the report shows that the greatest amount of money was derived from the ground fish branch, cod, haddock, hake, pollock and cusk, value of these fish taken being $3,713,817. He calls attention to the havoc wrought by the dogfish."

The next most prolific branch of the fisheries, according to his report, is the lobster business, in which the catch totaled $3,277,816. The report calls attention to the fact that Maine produces more lobsters than any other state in the union and that this department is endeavoring in every way to increase the growth of the industry by protecting the mother lobster with eggs, and the small lobsters until they reach the legal size.

Selling Short Lobsters.

He deprecates the detrimental practice which he says is becoming too common on the Maine coast, of housing short lobsters in sunken cars and selling them to smacks from neighboring states where the law allows the taking of lobsters smaller than may be taken in Maine. It is almost impossible to fight this practice, he says, since the smacks may anchor outside the jurisdiction of the state, and as a remedy he recommends a uniform law for states nearby.

The Herring Industry.

Regarding the herring industry, the report shows that there was an increase in the catch of 1914 over 1913 amounting to $929,919, the total value of the catch for 1914 being $1,400,044. The commissioner states the falling off in recent years in the herring catch may be due to the fact that thousands of fish smothered in the nets are thrown back into the water and, decompose, and herring will not remain in or return to polluted waters.

The value of other catches is given as follows: Halibut and flounders, $235,382; clams, $771,867; alewives, $60,594; mackerel, $76,499; salmon, $41,128; shad, $95,-104.

Experiment on Oysters.

The commisisoner reports experimental work in regard to propagating oysters in Maine waters, which it says are well adapted to them, and states that in 1914 50,000 seed oysters were planted between Mount Desert and Portland from which results may be expected in June of this year, and which will be looked forward to with interest.

In regard to the scallop industry he states that it employs a large number of men, and deprecates what is known as shelling on the grounds. The practice of shelling the scallops on the fishing grounds and the consequent decomposition of the shells there is believed to be holding back the increase of this shellfish.

The clam industry, the report says, is among our greatest and most growing, and it recommends that measures be taken to keep the flats from being polluted, and that only marketable clams should be taken from the flats.

Alfred Cossaboom and Ralph Nesbitt, two Gulliver's Cove fishermen, were picked up yesterday off Digby Gut by Captain Collins of the steamer Granville. They had had a rough experience in the Bay of Fundy, after the engine of their fishing boat broke down.

Danger Signals Warn You of Approaching Paralysis

Slowly and Surely Exhaustion Goes on Until Collapse of the Nerves is the Natural Result.

You may be restless, nervous, irritable and sleepless, but you think there is nothing to be alarmed at. You have no appetite, digestion is impaired, and there is weakness and irregularity of other bodily organs. You feel tired in body and mind, and find that you lack the energy to attend to the daily task.

MRS. ALLAN.

You may not realise that these are the symptoms of nervous prostration and the danger signals which warn you that some form of paralysis is the next step of development.

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food is the most successful restorative for the nerves that has ever been offered to the public. This has been proven in many thousands of cases similar to the one described in this letter.

Mrs. Thos. Allan, R.F.D., 3, Sombra, Ont., writes:—"Five years ago I suffered a complete breakdown, and frequently had palpitation of the heart. Since that illness I have had dizzy spells, had no power over my limbs (locomotor ataxia) and could not walk straight. At night I would have severe nervous spells, with heart palpitation, and would shake as though I had the ague. I felt improvement after using the first box of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and after continuing the treatment can now walk, eat and sleep well, have no nervous spells and do not require heart medicine. I have told several of my neighbors of the splendid results obtained from the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food."

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.
