SAWING A WOMAN IS DRAWING CROWDS

Advertised as the world's greatest mystery, "Sawing a Woman in Half," now playing the Opera House, is causing thousands of people to gasp in amazement at the spectacle of a young woman being sawed in two parts, many and comical are the comments, humorous guesses and hazy ideas of how it is done as being discussed throughout the city, but the fact remains that she is saved in two at every performance, and not a drop of blood is visible, and it is all the young lady comes out living. People are crowding the Opera House at every performance, and today bids fair to break all attendance records for this popular theatre.

The photo drama is a story by Max Martin—"The Face at Your Window," which will be changed tomorrow, being replaced by Charles Dickens' "The Tale of Two Cities," with Wm. Farnum and all star cast. As an added attraction, Tuesday in addition to the Great Opera in "Sawing a Woman in Half," and "The Tale of Two Cities," the Great Fiasco will also present a comedy magic act that he promises will keep people screaming with laughter.

For Saturday during the matinee performance the Opera House has obtained the celebrated London Punch and Judy Show for the kiddies from six to sixty. Take it all for all there is a rare treat in store at every performance at the Opera House this week.

WOMAN BROKER LEFT $500,000

Mrs. Helen M. Knickerbacker Remembers Relatives, Employees and Friends in Will—Several Gifts to Charity.

New York, May 10.—The will of Mrs. Helen M. Knickerbacker, member of the brokerage firm of H. Knickerbacker & Co., has been filed in the Surrogate's Office. Mrs. Knickerbacker lived in New York City and Saratoga Springs. She died on Jan. 30 last. The amount of the estate will not be known until it is appraised, but the bequests enumerated approach $500,000, besides the residue.

To Robert Gibson, Mrs. Knickerbacker's partner in the firm, she left $125,000. His wife receives $25,000, and each of the four Gibson children get $5,000. Several of the old-time employees of the company were remembered in the will. They were: Bolts F. Brennan of 389 East Thirty-second street, Brooklyn, $25,000; Lillian L. Southernland and John H. Knapp, $5,000 each, and William Fortmeyer, $1,000.

Dr. George F. Constock of Saratoga Springs receives $10,000 and an aunt of the decedent, Eliza Rockwell of Saratoga Springs, $15,000. To these cousins of the decedent $10,000 each is left: George W. Burr of Round Lake, N. Y., and his wife, Bella Burr. To her "dear and devoted friend," Sarah Trapp and Anna McDowell, Mrs. Knickerbacker left $15,000 each. To Lavina E. Knickerbacker of Ballston Spa, N. Y., the widow of the testatrix's son, William Knickerbacker, $10,000 was bequeathed, but under a codicil dated April 28, 1915, this provision for the daughter-in-law was revoked, and the legacy reduced to $5,000, without any explanation for so doing; $20,000 is bequeathed to Emily Wood, a cousin of Saratoga Springs, N. Y., and $15,000 to Grace Carlin. A legacy of $10,000 was made for decedent's brother, Sidney Bunn, but by subsequent codicil this is revoked, and his care and future wants are left in the care of Robert Gibson, the principal legatee under the will.

The following benevolent legacies of $20,000 each were made: Hawley Home for Children, Saratoga Springs; Saratoga Hospital, Church Aid of the Protestant Episcopal Church and the Bethesda Protestant Episcopal Church at Saratoga Springs. To the Saratoga Cure and Infirmary $10,000 is left, and a like sum goes to St. Luke's Hospital in this city and $5,000 to St. Thomas' Protestant Episcopal Church of this city with which to purchase two good chairs in memory of decedent's son, Harry. The will also leaves the testatrix's diamond necklace, earrings and diamond neck.

SAVE DAYLIGHT, BUT CHANGE NO CLOCK

Govt. Officials and Washington Business Heads Agreed to Start Work Earlier.

Washington, May 10.—Daylight saving time will go into effect in the District of Columbia on May 15, but no liberties are to be taken with the clocks which will point to eastern standard time. Everybody will be supposed to get up an hour earlier, go to work sixty minutes ahead of time and, presumably, shut down their desks an hour before the usual closing hours.

This was made known after a secretary of Commerce Hoover and representatives of various Washington commercial organizations. When the old hours will be resumed has not been determined, but Secretary Hoover, who took part in the conference as representative of the Federal departments, intimated that Oct 1 would be the date. He explained that department heads are convinced from inquiries they have made that 80 per cent. of the Federal employees are in favor of the earlier hours.

Just what this innovation is going to do to Washingtonians' habits and whether they can accustom themselves to going to bed an hour earlier are problematical. The greatest mix-up from the new schedule will be in the activities of methodical workers whose lives for years have been regulated by the clocks. They may be able to get up earlier but they are wondering whether they can break their habits to stop work an hour earlier.

By agreement to open stores, theatres and Federal departments in the summer months an hour ahead of the regular time it has not been necessary to go before congress for legislation to turn the clocks back. No estimate was made today of the time saved congress that otherwise would have been spent in debate upon a bill to set back District of Columbia clocks. The first example of time saving was given by "Uncle Joe" Cannon, who celebrated his 86th birthday tonight a day ahead of time.
