CASTING OUT WITCHES.

LONDON, Sept. 13—William Wood-house, a mechanical engineer, behaved so strangely on Thursday night that he was arrested. At Ilkeston police court yesterday a constable stated, that Woodhouse deckired to him that he had just driven eight witches out of his house and one of them had gone to his house and one of them had gone to his house and one of them had gone to France. On the way to the police station the prisoner began searching the hedge bottom, asserting there was another witch there. On arrival at the station he thought it was the railway booking office, and asked for a ticket to London. He was remanded for medical examination.
