Bishop Sweeny's Will.

The Bishop Sweeny will case came be-fore Judge Trueman in the Probabe Court yetserday morning.

Judge Trueman stated that, after having declared the validity of the will, one point remained for consideration: Who, under the will, were entitled to the executorship? The will contained the following words: "I hereby appoint the Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John and Monsignor Connolly as my executors." As to a corporation being capable to act as executors, he said a corporation aggregate cannot act as an executor, but not so a corporation sole. The Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John was a corporation sole, but in this case he doubted if the Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John could become an executor. Section 4 declares ng declared the validity of the will, Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John could become an executor. Section 4 dectares that in case the Bishop of St. John should become incapable to exercise the powers of a corporation sole, a stranger to the corporation might do so. Here then would be an agency, and, therefore, he would hold the corporation is not capable to act as executor. But he based his decision on other grounds. The will appoints two persons as executors. The corporation as a corporation and a private person could not act as executors. In one place in the will, property is devised to the Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John in trust, and then the testator treats it differently and devises $500 to his executors for masses. devises $500 to his executors for masses.
Therefore, the judge said, he was of opinion that the executors were two persons, and consequently he would grant letters testamentary to Timothy Casey and Thomas Connolly.
