New York, Oct 17—The market has been unsettled, with berth rates to ports in Great Britain lower, though there was a better tone and some reaction yesterday. The chartering demand has been rather slack, and for the Petroleum trade rather easier rates have been accepted. The arrivals have been smewhat more numerous but the tonnage supply is stillight; and while this continues to be the case no material decline in rates is probable at this period of usual activity. Ships adapted to long voyages are scarce and in demand at good rates. A fair demand prevails for cotton tonnage, to load at the South at full rates.
