Thursday p.m., March 20, 1902.

This morning's market was broad and active and prices generally buoyant. Dominion Steel Common, however, after working up about ½ point from the opening to 46¾, had a pretty steady decline throughout the day, reacting by fractions to 44¾ at the close. The Preferred Stock had a similar experience and after selling up to 96¾ closed with 91¾ bid, the last transactions being made at 92. Dominion Coal Common furnished the fireworks of the trading and after opening at 121 sold down to 118 recovering to 121 and again reacting to 117½, from which point a further recovery placed the stock at 118½ for the closing sale and closing bid was 119¼, Twin City and Toronto Rails were in fairly good demand, the former selling from 115½ to 115 ½ and the latter from 117¾ to 117¾.

The New York market throughout the day was comparatively featureless though the general tone was steady.
