Children's Colds From Wet Feet and Chilled Bodies.

A puddle of water or patch of ice is an irresistible temptation for every boy, and most girls. The result is usually wet feet, chilled bodies, coughs and colds.

The children must be safeguarded, for, if they do survive the frequent coughs and colds, it is often with the lungs so weakened that they become chronic sufferers from bronchitis or consumption.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine will almost invariably cure a cold, and that quickly, if taken at that critical time when it is settling on the chest.

It kills the germs, for there is no greater germicide than turpentine. It soothes the irritation which causes coughing, clears the air passages, and positively cures the cold.

Being composed of simple ingredients of undoubted value, Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is admirably suited as a treatment for children.

It is pleasant to the taste. So much so that children delight to take it on this account, as well as because of the quick relief it affords them.

Many mothers prize this medicine most because they have found in it a cure for croup and whooping cough, ailments which seldom yield to other treatments.

Every bottle of this medicine bears the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M. D., the famous Montreal doctor, 236 a. bottle for family use, 60c. All Dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

A Winter Dawn.

By J. C. H. DENSON
Was in the morning air decreased
The sun, and the moon gave way,
And dawned in the east,
The spirit of the dawn.

Went through a drift of golden light,
And looked at the night,
And gazed at the morning star.

It looked all the hills with dew,
And looked at the night,
And gazed at the morning star,
And looked at the night,
And gazed at the morning star.

The House That Bobby Built.

It was Sunday afternoon and Bobby had come up from the city to see Miss Grey. She had gone with him down to the river. They sat on the rocks far out in the stream, and talked of the willows and of their greenness above the water; of the mill's picturesque; of the dog-wood flowers that lightened the woods.

Suddenly Miss Grey leaned back and studied him intently. 'Bobby,' she said, 'you have changed.'

'Yes,' said Bobby.

'A woman?'

'Yes,' said Bobby; he laughed. 'For the first time Miss Grey felt a jarring note when Bobby laughed. "Is her picture in your watch?" she questioned.

'No,' he answered promptly, 'it is in my heart.'

'Bobby!' Miss Grey put out her hand—it was like a sudden, wistful appeal, 'I hope you will be happy.'

'Expect to be,' said Bobby. In the silence that followed he looked up at the stream and whistled.

Of course she had known that he had formed the habit of flinging his temperamental heart at her feet, in season and out, she had advised this step; but somehow she had not expected him to be so cheerful about it. She would miss the oft-repeated declarations and the flowers. Other men sent her violets, roses—Bobby brought her plinks, fragrant old-fashioned plinks. Other men sent carnations, but Bobby never sent carnations. There was not anybody in the whole world who understood, but Bobby.

'Janie,—there wasn't anybody else in the world who called Regenia Grey 'Janie'—don't you want me to tell you about it?'

'Yes,' said Miss Grey, lying bravely.

'It's to be in June. Surprised? You had me moved slightly. 'We are going to keep house in a cottage, with a white pillared porch—lots of porch. The dining room is furnished in Flemish oak—the figures in the chair backs make faces at you—it's very comfortable and beautiful. There, the cabinet you'd call a dear—it was Reg's then you see, my wife will need it for the presents!'

'His wife! Bobby's wife?'

'There's a couch and lots of pillows in the den; the furniture is mahogany there. The library table is the best looking one I ever saw; there's a tall case on it for flowers. You see, I had added "I am trying to please my wife."

Miss Grey turned on him in white and speechless indignation.

'Janie dear!—the color had come into his cheeks—'It's the twilight that I think of, for us, there. And I go to her silently and put my arms about her.'

'It is late,' Miss Grey spoke coldly. 'You'll miss your train.' They walked back to the house in silence. At the steps Bobby stooped and kissed her brow.

'You always said you would be glad, Janie, but you have been good to let me go so patiently. Now I must go for my train.'

'I'll look out her handkerchief and vigorously rubbed her brow. The touch of the cold brotherly kiss stung.

In the library she lay still among the cushions piled high on the couch. A sharp barb had hit her for the woman who was to live there with Bobby, and Bobby's wife. The arithmetic of her heart could be counted by years; and her selfish question of arithmetic told her that Bobby.

'Apparently he had been,' she sobbed. 'There are only two—two means by little girls between us.'

After a while she got up, went to the window, and stood there, looking out.

The room was very quiet. Suddenly a stranger came was about her and she said, 'Bobby!'

'I missed my train,' said Bobby, the stranger.

'He had her from him. It was dark but he knew that her eyes were wet, his lips trembling, held her from him, and gave her a soft little kiss.

'You are called dear,' he said, 'and you are simple—sweet stupid, Janie Grey—now to know your own name when it's so suitably described by your faithful lover!'

'Oh, Bobby,' she cried wistfully,

The Romance of a New Brunswick Town.

About twelve years ago the Hon. Thomas Ashburnham, brother of the sixth Earl of Ashburnham, decided to abandon the military and court circles in which he had lived, and seek seclusion across the sea. He had been a captain in the 7th Hussars, had served in the Egyptian campaign and in South Africa, and had been A. D. C. to Lord Aberdeen in Dublin Castle. He probably liked the life he led, but awoke to the realization, sometimes sufficient to enable him to continue it, as his salary and moderate allowance was not sufficient to support him in the style his position called for.

So he quietly retired, came across the ocean, and sought the seclusion that Frederick offered. He took a farm and lived so retired a life that his small income was more than enough to meet all expenses.

Then he met and fell in love with Miss Maria Anderson, night operator in the telephone exchange, and succeeded, after long and persistent wooing, in winning her heart and hand. They have lived very quietly ever since, only appearing once in a while at some social or official function, and the ex-Captain of Hussars has served as Major of Dragons in the Canadian militia.

And now the childless earl is dead and Major Ashburnham succeeds him in the title and estates. Miss Maria Anderson is Countess of Ashburnham, Lord Ashburnham is preparing to go to England to take possession of his inheritance and Lady Ashburnham will join him there.

It is a pretty little romance, in its way, and is true in every detail.

$25 For a Letter.

CAN YOU WRITE ONE?

THIRTEEN PRIZES TO BE AWARDED IN A LETTER WRITING COMPETITION.

Some years ago the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., offered a series of prizes to residents of the Maritime Provinces for the best letters describing cures wrought by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Hundreds of letters were submitted in this competition, and yet there must have been thousands of other users of the pills who did not avail themselves of the opportunity to win a prize. To all these another letter writing competition is offered. Thousands of cures through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have never been reported. These will furnish the material for the letters to be written in this contest. There is no demand upon the imagination; every letter must deal with facts and facts only.

THE PRIZES:

The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., of Brockville, Ont., will award a prize of $25.00 for the best letter received on or before the 15th day of March, 1913, from residents of the Maritime Provinces, on the subject, 'Why I Recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.' A prize of $10.00 will be awarded for the second best letter received; a prize of $5.00 for the third best letter, and ten prizes of $3.00 each for the next best ten letters.

THE CONDITIONS:

The cure or benefit from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills described in the letter may be in the writer's own case, or one that has come under his personal observation.

More than one cure may be described in the letter, but every statement must be literally and absolutely true.

The letter should be no longer than is necessary to relate the benefit obtained from the remedy in the case described.

Every letter must be signed by the full name and correct address of the person sending it. If it describes the cure of some person other than the writer of the letter, it must also be signed by the person whose cure is described as a guarantee of the truth of the statement made.

The writer of each letter must state the name and date of the paper in which he or she saw this announcement.

No writing will not win the prize unless you have a good case to describe. The strength of the recommendation and not the style of the letter will be the basis of the reward.

It is understood that the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. shall have the right to publish any letter entered in this contest if they desire to do so, whether it wins a prize or not.

The contest will close on March 15th, 1913, and the prizes will be awarded as soon as possible thereafter. Do not delay. If you know of a cure write your letter NOW. Observe the above conditions carefully on your letter may be thrown out.

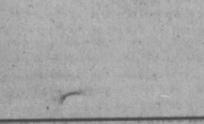

Address all letters as follows:
THE DR. WILLIAMS' MEDICINE CO.,
BROCKVILLE, ONT.
Letter Contest Department.

Tariff Making.

The chances are that rough lumber, wood pulp and news print paper will be among the articles on the free list when the new tariff is brought down in the United States Congress sometime in March. A strong agitation among those who live in cities has been commenced to lower the schedule on food stuff. This is being resisted by Democratic farmers. A leading member of the Ways and Means Committee at Washington the other day stated the policy of the Democratic party was to lower the tariff on all the necessities of life, leaving that on luxuries to stand as it is. In the meantime all interests with regard to lowering of the tariff have got in an appearance at Washington to prevent this being done as far as possible. Tariff making on a large scale is difficult and slow work.

Acadia Graduates Train.

Leaving on the noon train to day for Stewiacke, N. S., were a bride and groom who had many friends in St. John to wish them all happiness, Dr. Harry Bernard Havel, of that place, and Miss L. Rita Brown, M. A., late a student member of the teaching staff in the St. John High School. They were married this morning at the residence of the bride's brother, E. Clinton Brown, 52 Elliott Row, by Rev. M. F. McCuebon, pastor of Brussels street Baptist church.

The wedding took place in the presence of relatives and close friends. The bride, who was given away by her brother, was unattended. She was attractively gowned in rose silk with crystal trimmings. Her traveling costume was of champagne color with brown hat and ostrich tips. After the ceremony, a dainty luncheon was served and later Dr. and Mrs. Havel left for their future home in Stewiacke, where the groom enjoys a well established practice. Both he and his bride are graduates of Acadia. He received his medical training at McGill and for a time was house doctor in the General Public Hospital here. Among a handsome assortment of bridal remembrances which they received were a beautiful picture from the members of the High School Alumnae and a valuable cut glass set from the teaching staff in the High School, with all of whom the bride has been very popular.—St. John Times, Jan. 29.

Col. Hughes' Action Approved.

The recent action of the Minister of Militia and Defence in giving an invitation to representatives of the various women's societies throughout the Dominion to be present at certain sessions of the military conference to be held in Ottawa during February, has received the endorsement of those interested in the moral welfare of the men, who attend the camps yearly throughout the country.

A striking article in support of the Minister appears in the Montreal Daily Witness, (Liberal). 'Colonel Hughes,' says the Witness, 'has shown the instinct of a statesman in summoning the women into council in studying the interests of our military camps. He could not have done a greater thing for his government.'

Mrs. Prentice—How do you manage to have such delicious beef?

Mrs. Bywell—I select a good, honest butcher and then stand by him.

Mrs. Prentice—You mean that you give him all your trade?

Mrs. Bywell—No, I mean that I stand by him while he is cutting the meat.

Pop, what's the millenium?

Here is a message of hope and good cheer from Mrs. C. J. Martin, Boone Hill, Va., who is the mother of sixteen children. Mrs. Martin was cured of stomach trouble and constipation by Chamberlain's Tablets after five years of suffering, and now recommends them to the public. Sold by all dealers.

Zam-Buk

Are your hands chapped, cracked or sore? Have you "cold sores" which open and bleed when the skin is drawn tight? Have you a cold sore, front lip, chin, or a "wet" piece, which at times makes it agony for you to go about your household duties? If so, Zam-Buk will give you relief, and will heal the most-damaged skin. Ancient the sore places as night, Zam-Buk's rich healing ointment will sink into the wounds, and the smarting, and will heal quickly.

Mrs. Yellen, of Portland, says: "My hands were so sore and cracked that it was agony to get them done. When I did so they would smart and burn as if I had scalded them. I seemed quite unable to get relief from anything but as they said, I tried Zam-Buk, and it answered when all else had failed. It closed the big cracks, gave me ease, soothed the inflammation, and in a very short time healed my hands."

Zam-Buk also cures chapped, cracked, swollen, pruned, sore, itching, raw, and sore lips, nose, throat, and face. It is a very short time before you can see the results. Price 25c a box.
