Five Bankers Drowned on Quero and Point Verde.

Recent advices received in the city from banking vessels which arrived up the S. W. Coast, say that for a month or so very stormy weather has prevailed on the Banks, and that much gear has been lost, and sad to relate five human lives have been sacrificed. Last week the banker Marian Captain Dibbin, arrived at Sydney from Quero Bank, reporting that two of her crew, Messrs. Emberly Smith had been drowned by heir dory being struck by a sea as they returned to the vessel with it deeply laden with fish and upset. The captain and cook, the only men on boald, saw the accident from the Marian's deck, but as all the rest of the crew were fishing they had nothing to launch to go to the rescue. Both men were drowned before their eyes. The Gertrude, Capt. Walter Kennedy, which arrived at Sydney, also reported two of her crew missing. It is thought that they also overturned their dory with fish, and swamped, though there is the possibility that some vessel might have picked them up.

When the weather became excel tionally stormy yesterday morning a boat from Lamanche, trawl fishing off Point Verde, had her skipper lost. His name was James Flynn, of Lahim he went overboard. The accident was seen by two men in a dory who about a 1/2 mile off and they rowed to his rescue, but he disappear ed long before they reached the spot where he went overboard. Much sympathy is is expressed at Lamanche for the wife and family of deceased.

When she goes forth on Dobbin's back, she needs no lady's saddle; she gives a trusty steed a whack, and jogs along astraddle. She doesn't know the works of Pope from Thackeray's 'Pendennis," she's training as the white man's hope, and she is strong at tennis. When whiskers sprouted on her face it didn't much amaze her, and oft I hear her singing bass while hunting for a razor. She is pathetic, and she's droll, she's more or less than human; she is that trial to the soul, the modern mannish woman. You'd hear the countryside complain if I wore waists and dresses that I had swiped from Sarah Jane, her rats and storemade tresses.
