of other people's lives—

If mothers thought up grievances and walked over them— If mothers felt it their privilege to be cranky and disobliging and cross whenever they were tired— If mothers made life harder to live in any one of the dozens of ways the rest of the family do— Tell me, how on earth should we ever get along? Truly, I think we just shouldn't; at least not for long. Any more than a machine would be able to run very long without any oil. You don't like the implied comparison? You think it degrades mothers? I don't know. It seems to me that oil has a pretty important function.

Just think of it. If there were no oil to be found anywhere in the world how long would all the vast fabrics of machinery that makes modern life what it is—the huge pumps that send the water into our kitchens and our bathrooms, the machinery that manufactures our clothes and our furniture and ten thousand other things for each day's use, the motor, the dynamo and the steam engine that minister to our daily need or pleasure—how long would they all run smoothly, if at all, without oil?

About as long, I fancy, as the complicated machinery of family life would endure, if mothers began to claim the privileges of obstinacy and had temper and sulksiness that fathers and brothers and sisters all claim at least once in a while. Think of it some day when you are fretting or sulking or finding fault about something, and mother—poor little mother, who isn't the least in the world to blame—is trying to smooth things over. Think how strange it would seem if mother should turn the tables, except the rest of the family to soothe her. Think of it and thank God that He made those wonderful beings called mothers and made them willing and glad to be the oil of society.

Stomach Blood and Liver Troubles

Much sickness starts with weak stomach, and consequent poor, impoverished blood. Nervous and pale people lack good, rich, red blood. Their stomachs need invigorating for, after all, a man can be only stronger than his stomach.

A remedy that makes the stomach strong and the liver active, makes rich red blood and overcomes and drives out disease-producing bacteria and cures a whole multitude of diseases.

Get rid of your Stomach Weakness and Liver Laziness by taking a course of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, "the Great Blood Purifier, Liver Invigorator and Blood Cleanser."

You can't afford to accept any medicine of unproven composition as a substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery," which is a medicine of known composition, having a complete list of ingredients in plain English, same being attached as correct under oath.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate Stomach, Liver and Bowels.

Why Kitchener Isn't Liked.

He Has Made Powerful Enemies in High Circles by His Iron Rule. Lord Kitchener's appointment as the King's representative in Egypt means that there are a number of very angry people in various parts of the British Empire. For months they have been fighting a terrible silent battle against him. They have laboured hard to bar his way to any post of power and honour—and he has beaten them.

It would be foolish to pretend that Lord Kitchener has no enemies. He has, and they are powerful enemies, too. But he has made them by refusing to budge an inch from what he regards as the line of his duty; and also, what has made him far more unpopular in certain quarters, he has refused to let other people shrink what he regards as their duty.

"Your reasons for not doing what you are told are the best I ever heard," he once told an officer after listening to a series of plausible excuses for neglected duty. "Now go and do it." That sort of remark to a "slacker" doesn't make him feel at all friendly towards you. It was during his Sudan campaign that Lord Kitchener seriously began the process of making enemies by standing no nonsense from anybody. To drop the Ladies in the Nile. Some ladies wanted to go to the front, and they arranged with an influential personage at the War Office that they should be sent out as nurses. Lord Kitchener received a telegram telling him to expect them. He replied immediately that he did not desire the presence of women with the Army. Again came a message from the War Office saying that the ladies were coming out. The exact words of Lord Kitchener's final words are unknown, but it was to the effect that if the ladies came they would be sent back, and if they came again he would drop them into the Nile. After that threat no more was heard of the proposal, but both the high personage and the ladies took a violent dislike to the Commander-in-Chief.

Before the advance on Khartoum Lord Kitchener required a new type of gun, and sent home for it. The War Office, after its amiable custom, replied by offering to send out another kind of gun, more or less obsolete. Lord Kitchener tartly replied that he could throw stones himself, he wanted a gun to shoot with. More trouble!

His Hurred Visit to Cape Town. During the last Boer War Lord Kitchener, though busy at the front, paid a hurried visit to Cape Town. Here he found a number of officers having a great time. His visit was quite unexpected, of course, and they had no time to scurry back to their regiments. When they suddenly ran face to face with their Commander-in-Chief in the hall of a big hotel they nearly fainted.

"What are you doing in Cape Town?" Lord Kitchener demanded. "I—well, on leave, sir," was the trembling answer. "Oh, indeed? On leave, are you?" "Yes, there's—there's not very much—fighting—on—just now," another of the officers ventured to remark. "Really?" Lord Kitchener retorted. "You surprise me. Well, you will do better go straight back to the front—all of you—or you will take the next boat back to England. You understand?" They understood very well indeed, and the whole lot caught the next train to the north.

One of the things that exasperated him is when he gives a plain order and is asked to explain it, or to repeat it. During the South African War he sent for an aide-de-camp and gave him one or two verbal orders to take to some officers in the neighborhood. The aide-de-camp failed to grasp the orders properly, and three times he said, "I don't understand, sir." "MINARD'S, FINEST—G. R. I. S. DIPHTHERIA. HARRIS' Linctant Cures Colds, Etc.

CONTAINS NO ALUM. COSTS NO MORE THAN THE ORDINARY KINDS. E.W. GILLET CO. LTD. TORONTO, ONT.

asked Lord Kitchener to repeat them. At the third request the General lost all patience. He wheeled round to the table and wrote a few hurried words on a sheet of paper. The Hornet's Nest in India. "Here, Captain Blank," he said, handing the paper to the aide-de-camp "take this note. It is to the Principal Medical Officer asking him to examine your ears. There is evidently something wrong with them. And as you go out please send someone else to me." But it was when he went to India that Lord Kitchener stirred up his biggest hornet's nest. So big, indeed, was the nest and so angry were the hornets that every effort was made to prevent him from being sent back to India recently as Viceroy. The Indian army had drifted into a very "slack" state when Lord Kitchener arrived on the scene. The climate, of course, is rather against hard work in India, and as a general rule nobody does more work than they can help. Lord Kitchener changed all that. "How many men do you want for the manoeuvres?" asked a certain General who had about 20,000 troops under his command. "I think I can spare 5,000." Quick as a flash came Lord Kitchener's reply: "I want every man who is not sick or otherwise incapacitated for duty." And he saw to it that he got them, too. If Lord Kitchener had been contented to make himself amiable at Simla tea-parties and had not worried people to do the work they had been sent out to India to do, he would almost certainly have been Viceroy of India to-day. Egypt, however, is a good second; perhaps India may yet come to him.—Pearsons Weekly.

Invents "First Aid" for Hobble Skirts.

Alexander Jameson Calhoun, of Bloomfield, N.J., has invented a device which he says will assist women wearing hobble skirts in getting aboard trains. The device, which is worked by hydraulic pressure, consists of an iron jack to which is attached a cushioned chair worked by two levers. The "lift" is placed in front of the platform of the car. When the woman is seated in the chair the operator presses a handle which lifts the chair up in line with the platform of the car. He then works a lever which extends the chair straight out and lands the passengers on the platform of the car. It is said persons are lifted to the platform quicker than they can climb the steps.

Cooling Comfort On Hot Days

You need Abbey's Salt just as much as you need ICE, in summer. A pinch of Abbey's Salt in a glass of cold water is the most refreshing, satisfying of summer drinks. It quenches thirst—cools the blood—and does NOT upset the stomach. Try it.
