A PARK SUGGESTION.

To the Editor of the "Advertiser": As there is an appropriation for a new band stand for the park, it might be well, before letting the contract, that the committee consider the advisability of building it in such a way that a cafe could be underneath. It seems to me that such a convenience, where ice cream, light drinks and other refreshments could be obtained. would not only be much appreciated by the thousands who visit the park, but that a source of revenue would be derived from its rent. You will find in the United States, and, I believe, in Europe, a pavilion of this nature in nearly every park, where they are a source of considerable profit to the lessees, as well as to the city, and

The work will be pushed as speedily as possible, and an effort made to have the line completed for the Queen's Birthday. The water commissioners have sanctioned the agreement, as amended by the council. FOUND A BALLOON.

Mr. Thomas Knowles, of South London, was strolling through a wood north of the asylum the other morning, when he came across a small balloon, to which was attached the following note: "The finder of this balloon will please notify me of its orrival, or time of finding. George Bloom, care of the Free Press, Detroit." Mr. Knowles wrote Mr. Bloom and learned that he had released the balloon at noon on the day previous to the finding. Mr. Knowles made the find at 8:40 in the morning. The balloon appeared as if the O'Brien homestead, on Riverview it had lain in the woods the greater avenue, at present occupied by Mrs.

The versatile comedienne, Madge Tucker, and her capable company, will appear at the Grand all next week in an entirely new and up to date repertoire of popular plays, with special scenery and mechanical effects for each production, opening her engagement with the domestic comedy-drama, "The Buckeye," written especially for Miss Tucker by the well known author, C. E. Calahan. This drama is, in its strong and ambitious moral purpose, epigrammatic force and literary polish of its dialogue, and intensity of interest, the most noteworthy effort of Mr. Calahan's career as a playwright. The role which Miss Tucker assumes, that of Mary Jane, an orphan asylum waif, fits her like a glove, and gives her ample opportunity to display her wonderful versatility and dramatic powers; also a chance to introduce her clever singing and dancing specialties which never fail to bring her many rounds of applause. All the leading roles are admirably portrayed, whil the less important ones are presented with a degree of excellence and care that is seldom seen on any stage by a popular-priced company.

Clothing:-Do you know that our only real competitors are the best custom tailors? In clothing ready-towear we acknowledge no superiors, because we have none; we make the best possible clothing in the several grades from good to finest, and none can beat that. True, the custom tailors make equal-well-fitting garments-when they hit it right-and they use equally good materials. But when it comes to prices-other things being equal—where are the custom tailors? Not in the competition
