RABBI PHILLIPS OFFICIATES

Grandparents, Aged Over 90,
Give Bridegroom in Marriage.

One of the most brilliant Jewish events held in the city for some time took place at the synagogue at 6 o'clock on Sunday evening when the wedding of Miss Bella Rotenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. Rotenberg, became the bride of Ben Matthews, also of London. Rabbi Phillips officiated and the ceremony was performed with all the ancient rites which have characterized the Jewish wedding since Old Testament days.

The bride was given in marriage by Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Asanove, of Toronto, formerly of this city, and the bridegroom was given away by his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. M. Kaufman, of Boston, Mass., who are both over 90 years of age. As the bride party entered the church the bridal chorus from Mendelssohn was played by an orchestra and the bride and groom took their places beneath a white velvet canopy heavily embroidered with gold.

The bride was beautifully gowned in white crepe and heavily beaded front and side drapes, and hand-kerchiefs of white marabout. She wore a wedding veil caught back with pearls and orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and valley lilies. Miss Frieda Rotenberg was her sister's maid of honor in a lovely gown of cream lace and carried a bouquet of roses. The bridesmaids were Misses Ida and Bessie Matthews, sisters of the bridegroom. In a gown of powder blue georgette with cream lace trimmings, Miss Ray Matthews, in maize georgette and lace and Miss Merriam Gettschalk in yellow georgette with cream lace, both carrying Ophelia roses and wearing silver bandeaux head dresses.

The bride's other attendants included four dainty flower girls in peach colored dresses. They were Frances Asanove and Freke Rotenberg, in taffeta frocks with bouquets, and Bernice Rotenberg and Beatrice Rotenberg, of Toronto, in georgette and lace frocks with net veils and carrying baskets of flowers.

The bridegroom was attended by Saul Rotenberg, of Windsor, brother of the bride, and the groomsmen were Messrs. Sam Mandel, Maurice Rotenberg, Laver Lerner, Dave Wolfe and Abbe Asanove. At the conclusion of the ceremony a wedding dinner was served in the Masonic Temple, which was followed by a dance. The bride's mother received in a gown of black georgette, with corsage of Ophelia roses, and was assisted by the bridegroom's mother in a gown of yellow georgette heavily beaded with corsage of Sunburst roses. Mrs. Harry Rotenberg wore heavily beaded powder blue with head dress of brilliants and carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. The wedding trip is to be spent in Buffalo and other American cities, the bride traveling in navy blue velvet with black satin and velvet hat and brown fox fur.

A COZY CORNER FOR COFFEE IN THE SUNSHINE.

A breakfast nook is a delightful asset to the small house and to the apartment where no servant is kept. In the small home, generally located directly off the kitchen, it serves to save the housewife many steps and still gets away from the idea of "eating in the kitchen." In the apartment it is usually located off the living-room or between the living-room and kitchenette, and serves for all meals. It may be separated from the main room with curtains of some kind and thus allows a privacy some people desire for eating. However used, the nook should be a cheerful and delightful place with east or west light if possible. The one here illustrated is certainly all that can be desired with its curtains of real Irish lace, hand-blocked in floral designs. They are, by the way, "something new" and come made up with a valance between, the fullness of which allows the treatment to be adjusted to a window almost any size. There are table runners, portieres, couch covers, etc., to match this pattern. If desired they may be had in a variety of different patterns. The or composition floor, found in so many of the new homes and apartments, is recommended because of its cleanliness, and when it comes in such a pattern as this one illustrated is very distinctive.

HANG-OVER AFFECTION.

Do you have hang-over affection? By hang-over affection I mean a certain fondness for certain things that were not gratified in your childhood and that persist in you to this day.

Every now and then I find myself moved by such an affection.

One of them is for tulips. We never had any tulips in our garden. We had other flowers that, with my taste of today, I should like better than tulips, but we had no tulips. And so like the poet that always strains for the grass beyond its tether I always longed for tulips. There seemed something exotic and romantic and peculiarly desirable about them to me.

Our neighbor had a big bed of red and yellow and scarlet tulips and one day he gave me one. A tulip with yellow streaks on it. I can see that tulip now and remember how proud I was of it. When I look at tulips with my eyes of today I see them as very grand, stiff, ungraceful flowers. But I still have a haunting desire to possess them.

Accorded playing is another one of my hang-overs.

When I was about 12 years old, one of my chums who was a year or two older went to her first party with a boy. It was what was known as "Officers' Party" and was the grand social event of the year. Hitherto we had been too young for it and my chum was the first one of our crowd to attend. The day before she took me into the spare room (we still had spare rooms instead of guest rooms in those days) and showed me her party dress with all the fixings spread on the bed. It was a pink accordion pleated, there were new black slippers and black stockings and a pink fan. I remember thinking how nice it was, vaguely, but the dress itself, a rosy shade of pink organdie pleated to an

MISS SARTAIN'S DEATH
DEEPLY REGRETTED HEREWindsor Young Lady Was Great Favorite of Whits Resident Here

News of the death last week at the family residence, Windsor, of Miss Dorothy Sartain, only child of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sartain, has been received by her many friends here, her former home, with deep regret.

While a resident of this city Miss Sartain was a member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, where she was active in many organizations. She was a dependable member of the Marian Keith Club, at one time being the treasurer, was a successful Sunday school teacher and a leader of a C. G. I. T. group.

After going to Windsor Miss Sartain was instrumental in organizing the London Club, of which she was the president. She also interested herself in church work there, being a member of St. Andrew's congregation and connected with several young people's organizations. In both cities Miss Sartain was a general favorite and her parents have the sympathy of a wide circle of friends. The funeral was held from the family home on Thursday and interment was made at the Windsor Grove Cemetery.
