My employer privately expressed the opinion that I had been getting above my business, and he was glad to see me taken down a peg. Evelina said, 'Never mind, we don't care for money.' But not many days after, Eevlina told me she had be gun to realize what a soleum ordinance was matrimony; she and I were both young and had our own way to make, and she thought perhaps for the present it would be better for us to consider ourselves only friends.

I said 'very well,' and felt that I was a lonely bark tossed on a wild and watry waste.

I had read of instances similar to mine where the sealed packet or the old Bible proved to contain bank notes; but finger the paper left me as I would, I could make nothing of it but paper.

For a year I went calmly and hope lessly forward in the dry goods and grocery way, and we then assembled for the opening of of my sealed orders—the lawyer, the doctor, the minister and myself. The first words that met my eyes as I unfolded the paper were, 'And all former wills by me made I do hereby revoke,' etc. With palpitating heart I passed the document to the lawyer. After provisions and legacies similar to those in the first document, this latter document proceeded as follows:

To the American Missionary Society I give and bequeath the sum of $25,000. To my beloved nephew. 'Samuel, I have been reflecting upon my duty to you. You are a young man just starting in life, and starting in some respect under favorable circumstances, but everything depends upon your starting right. You have always been faithful to my interests, and I have determined to show my appreciation of that faithfulness. I have intended to sell out to you!

A glance at the door showed me that the way of escape was not cut off.

'With all the varied interests of the business you are already familiar, we are yearly drawing in more of the trade from surrounding towns; we have the particles of the colonists, and to demonstrate to the world in general and Russia in particular the usefulness of Bettain's dependencies as sources of strength.—Toronto Paper.

Colonic Cathedral was laid on August 15, 1248. The 63 lst year of its building was completed on the 15th of last month, and it is hoped that the next anniversary will really see the finishing of the great Minister. The two towers have now reached their last stage, and have only to be fitted with their massive caps of solid stone-work.

For this purpose two great scaffoldings to the particular and private terms free; samples worth $5 also free; you can then make up your mind for yourself. Address GEORGE STINSON & CO., July 30 y. Portland, Maine.
