

As for the work itself; though it cannot vie in richness of exterior with the generality of English publications of the same nature, yet as regards the merit of its contents, he confidently believes that few of them surpass it.

"Pearls are pearls, though set in humble style."

In conclusion, the Editor returns his sincerest thanks to the Lord Bishop of Montreal, and to his friends among the Clergy and Laity, for their literary contributions, and their kind wishes for his success.

---