Trust Christ's Word

In a time of spiritual awakening in a certain town the foreman of a factory became anxious about his soul. They pointed him to Christ as the sinner's only refuge, but he still halted.

At length his employer wrote a note asking to see him at six o'clock, when he left his work for the day. He came promptly, holding the letter in his hand.

"Do you wish to see me, James?" asked his employer.

Confounded, he held up the letter.

"O, I see you believe I wanted to see you, and when I sent you the message you came at once."

"Surely, sir," said James.

"Well, see; here is a letter sent you by one equally in earnest," said his employer, holding up a slip of paper. The man took it, and read slowly: "Come—unto—Me—all—ye—that—labor." His lips quivered, his eyes filled; choking with emotion, he asked, "Am I just to believe that, in the same way I believed your letter?"

"Just the same way," was the answer. "If you receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater."
