Obtains Coughs, Chills, Night Sweats, Pains in the Lungs cease when you use

PSYCHINE

(Pronounced SI-KHEEN)
THRILLING EXPERIENCE
of Mr. Alfred Walden, in the employ of Toronto Street Railway, suffered for eighteen months from consumption, and his case so serious that he was advised to use Dr. Slocum's Treatment. Blesses the day he started to use Psychine, and will gladly tell to all sufferers how Psychine cured him of consumption.

Mr. Alfred Walden, 7 Cornwall Street, Toronto, employed by Toronto Street Railway for ten years as a motorman, informs us of his suffering and remarkable cure. Had an attack of La Grippe, then Typhoid Fever, which resulted in a complication of Throat and Lung troubles—Consumption. A number of physicians in this city pronounced his case hopeless, not having been conversant with the work of Psychine. Mr. Walden was advised to use Psychine, and, with the first bottle, he noticed great improvement. The cough, the chills and the night sweats were checked, pains in the lungs ceased, and in three months he was able to return to work in perfect health.

What Psychine has done for others, it can do for you, and while there is life there is hope. It will positively cure in ninety per cent. of cases.

PROVINCIAL MEDICAL MAN

SIR WILFRID SLATER.
His Comment on Chamberlain's Campaign Arouses London Papers.

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(C.A.P.)—Referring to Sir Wilfrid Slater's reply to Mr. Monk, in the Canadian House of Commons, saying that he understood that Mr. Chamberlain was making an argument, not a statement, the over-optimistic Westminster Gazette says: "Sir Wilfrid's explanation neatly supplements the words of the mad hatter in a cartoon to-day. The Gazette says the mad hatter contends that 'proof will be found in argument, not in figures. I use figures as illustrations to show what argument is.' Argument is everything to Mr. Chamberlain, but nothing to Sir Wilfrid Slater, who, we suppose, attaches more importance to illustrations and figures."

A Yonca-Street Novelty.
Quite a crowd were collected all day yesterday around the window of the Fairweather store on Yonge-street. The attraction was a curious milk can, which the firm have ordered. The can was shown inside out to demonstrate the enormous amount of work involved in the making of the garment. It is sixty inches in length, and the skirt is long, and 5 or 5 1/2 inches broad, but has 5 or 5 1/2 inches of "drop" to use a furrier's term, to a length of 20 inches, reducing the width to about two inches, thus giving an unbroken strip to the garment. An expert fur cutter employed on the garment for twelve consecutive days, and a machine operator worked for 21 days on the stitching. No less than 2400 yards of silk thread were consumed in the sewing. Upon enquiry, our reporter learned that the garment would be completed next week and would be again exhibited in the window.
