Nothing but Gold; Just For Looking

And Who Wouldn't Do Some Looking To Share in a Prize List of $2,750?

What's the matter with father—He's all in—Counting mother's circles—She's bound to win!—Sister Sue is at it too—This is all they seem to do—In The Advertiser Contest—They're bound to win!

The attention of Advertiser readers is called to the announcement in another part of this issue of the most novel contest yet introduced to the reading public. The advertiser can always be counted upon to be "the first with the latest," and this new feature has certainly made a big hit. Accuracy and patience are the only essentials necessary to arrive at the correct solution. There are no tricks or jokers to be sprung later. The chart appearing in The Advertiser is the same. There is only one chart, and because it now appears lengthwise in the advertisement, some of our contestants are under the impression that it is a different prize. It will contain the same number of circles the last day as it did the first. The rules of the contest, and the manner of distribution of the prizes are also clearly set forth in the chart.

Nothing but cash will be distributed to the winners. The value of the prize list is $2,750, and the maximum value of the first prize is $864 in cash. In all, 50 prizes will be awarded. A feature is the dividend plan under which contestants can grade the value to suit themselves. For instance, the first prize winner sending in a solution and including $2 for a subscription to The Advertiser, will receive $240, plus $20 for each new subscriber, not to exceed five, making a total prize of $840. If $12.48 is sent in, the value of the prize, under the dividend plan, will have increased to $864.

Study the plan carefully, and then get busy with your pencils and count the circles. There is money enough in it to make it worth your while. When The Advertiser sought to further the interests of its readers, and increase its circulation, it decided to adopt something that afforded an equal opportunity to all who entered the competition. The chart was prepared by a student of mathematics, with care and accuracy, but it takes no great mathematical skill to solve the problem. There is a correct solution. It can be obtained. Somebody will find it and receive a splendid reward. Remember, all money sent in goes to the credit of your subscription.

HOD ELLER AND LEFTY WILLIAMS TO PITCH TODAY

Weather Forecast Makes It Uncertain Whether Game Will Be Played.

BOTH TEAMS CONFIDENT

White Sox Fired With Enthusiasm for Eighth Battle of Series.

GAME WILL BE PLAYED. Comiskey Park, Chicago, Oct. 9.—The eighth game of the world's championship baseball series will be played here this afternoon, unless all indications at noon fail. The sun broke through the clouds shortly before noon and shone down brightly. An extremely high wind sprang up, however, and unless this abates at game time, the fielding end of the contest will be of a decidedly uncertain nature.

The scene at the ball yard today appeared more normal for a world series. The vast stretches of bleachers were more than three-fourths filled two hours before time.

Chicago, Oct. 9.—It was slightly cloudy today and a cold wind was blowing. Showers, with a moderate temperature, were the weather forecast, making it rather uncertain just what the weather might be at 2 o'clock, when the Cincinnati Reds and Chicago White Sox were to clash in the eighth game of the world's series.

Contenders for the world's baseball championship by virtue of their 4-to-1 victory over the Cincinnati Reds yesterday, the Chicago White Sox returned to Comiskey Park today to make a determined effort to draw abreast the Reds in the matter of games won, 4 to 4. Regarded as out of the race for premier baseball honors when the red legs took the eighth game of the series, the Sox, however, are now in the thick of the battle, and the two victories they hammered out on successive days on Comiskey field, which will be retained, are pre-series confidence in the ultimate outcome to their supporters here.

Needling both the single game to bring his team the championship, Manager Moran was expected to send "Lefty" Williams, pitcher, to the mound today in the eighth game of the series. Williams, who pitched the Sox to a 4-to-1 victory in the seventh game, was expected to lead the White Sox to three hits, one a home run, and two runs, when he pitched in the eighth game Monday, when the Sox won, 5 to 0.

Claude ("Lefty") Williams, twice defeated by the Red Legs, today holding them to an aggregate of eight hits in the two games, was expected to be Manager Moran's selection for mound duty.

Manager Moran, while somewhat surprised that his charges had failed in two attempts to assure the National League championship possession of the 1919 world's championship, merely pointed to the breaks of the game as responsible for what he terms the "postponement." He said the Sox would win the ninth game tomorrow at Cincinnati.

Even money. "Red" Faber, hero of the 1917 world series, was mentioned as a White Sox pitcher possibility today, but the odds of opinion was that Williams would be given the honor. Faber is said to have recovered form, though he was virtually on the retired list all the season.

Wagers on the outcome of the series were reported today. Prevailing odds on the series apparently were 2½ to 1 for the Cincinnati Reds, and even money on today's game.

The probable lineup and batting order follows:

Cincinnati. Rath, 1b. Daubert, 2b. Groh, 3b. Roush, c.f. Egan, p.

Chicago. Leibold, r.f. Weaver, 3b. Jackson, 1b. Peck, c.f. Gandil, 1b. Neale, r.f. Schatz, c. Williams, p.

WHERE ARE THE BIG GERMAN GUNS THAT BOMBARDED PARIS?

Paris, Oct. 9.—Where are the big guns with which the Germans bombarded Paris? is a question that is being frequently asked both in Germany and outside of it. A recent issue of the Berlin Tagblatt shows that this question was propounded by one of its representatives to Major Trepper, formerly attached to the German war ministry, and a participant in the armistice parleys. The major also was asked whether Germany had pledged herself to hand over these guns. Major Trepper is quoted as replying that Germany had given no such pledge, and as adding: "If the French newspapers want to know where these guns are they can be told that they are well hidden in our fortresses on the coast."
