ONLY PRODUCTION CAN RAISE DOLLAR

Says Kenneth J. Dunstan, Retiring President, to Board of Trade.

That only increased output, combined with thrift, will offset the depreciating value of the Canadian dollar was brought out clearly yesterday afternoon when Kenneth J. Dunstan, president, addressed the board of trade.

'To a certain degree, the prosperity of Canada today is real, and, to a certain degree, fictitious. To the extent that it is based upon the expenditure of savings representing produc-tion on the part of the public, it is real; insofar as it depends upon the immense expenditure of public money by the government from funds raised by loans which mortgage the future it is bound to be transient.

The depreciation in the Canadian dollar in our exchange with the United States is due to the purchasing power of Canadians from, first, their savings, due to productive effort; second, the circulation of money due to govern ment expenditures.

"High standards of living, high cost of commodities and general ex-tic vagance have resulted in the expenditure of an immense amount on imported articles and on imported raw materials entering into home manu facture. The fact that we have had to give chedit to Great Britain and to certain of our allies for the products which we have sold to them has also had a bearing."

The remedy suggested by Mr. Dunstan is simple, and would be effica-cious if people would adopt it. It is for the government to curtail all unecessary expenses, and the consumer to abolish luxuries, while the producers at the same time must increase their output. Thus, with diminished consumption and increased production, Canada would have more goods for foreign export trade, and would able to meet her foreign indebtedness in that way.

A Busy Year. Mr. Dunstan reported great business activity in plactically every line

"Domestic trade las increased," the report continues, "and, by the establishment of credits granted to foreign countries by the Canadian government, our export trade has been well maintained. That these crédits were necessary upon the termination of the war is generally admitted as a prevention of unemployment, and to create stability in farm products and manufactures. That careful control is necessary is obvious. The policy laid down by the commission is to place orders from foreign countries over as wide an area as possible, and every manufacturer and producer must first guarantee that he is in a position to ake care of home consumption. By this means trade has been developed in many lines.

'The general prosperity of the people is evinced by the large increase in bank deposits and the wonderful success of the domestic loans," said Mr.

Co-operation Won. It was the absolute co-operation of the Canadian troops overseas that had made them the spearhead of the troops going to Amiens. This was the quality of co-operation needed, stated Col. realized.

That the Federation for Community That the Federation for Community Service had already proved a success, was the statement of F. N. Staple ford, who stated that in the eight months in which the system had been operated the organizations which had federated had testified to its benefits. Seventy-five per cent. of the best charities in the city were enrolled, and the system had proved a great education to Toronto. It was time, said Mr. Stapleford, to get away from the tea-meeting stage and put the work upon a basis that is scientific and self-respecting. The speaker pointed out what the neighborhood workers had been able to do during the "flu" epidemic of last year, not of themselves alone, but because they knew they had the men behind them, who today are the supporters of the Federation for Community. on the, and that during December alone 528 families had been helped at the Central office. A man must have a might good reason or a very cold hearf who would refuse to help, said the speaker, who believed that Toronto would "put hover in mighty good shape."

That industrial conditions have crowded, yet separated, the population of the city, was the statement of J. E. Atkinson, who made an eloquent appeal for sympathy and justice from those who were benefited by conditions in favor of those who unfortunately were made to suffer. "Tonight," said Mr. Atkinson, "there are thousands of people in this city who are on the way to starvation unless we help." Some, he knew, could give abundantly; others generously, and all according to the measure of their ability. But assistance must not go on in doles.

Lending to the Lord. Those of us who profit by the system cannot look ourselves in the face unless we do what will for the time militate against conditions, declared Mr. Atkinson. Success was a word heard very often, but it should be coupled with succor—succor to those who need help in misfortune. This campaign was also a Victory Loan—a lending to the Lord—the bonds of which would be redeemed at least in an added self-respect. He hoped the success would go far beyond the objective.
