St. Paul Boxer Could Hold His Own With the White Heavies, but Might Find the Dark Ones a Little too Much—That Kilbane-Williams Bout is Not Settled Yet -Corbett's Fight Gossip.

BY JAMES J. CORBETT. Former Heavyweight Chample of the World.

NEW YORK, Feb. 6 .- Written spe ally for The Sunday World.)—Mike ons is to tackle the heavyweights son Equare Garden Club, that Mike as agreed to box Gunboat Smith has created quite a stir in boxing circles. And there is very good reason for " cCoy and Joe Wolcott has a middle tackled the job successfully McCoy, while hardly more than a middleweight, fought heavies, and Wolcott the "Barbadoes Demon" also took on some of the big fellows. The latter's most noted victory was over Joe Choynski at the Broadway Athletic Club of this city in 1899, if memory serves me right.

Fitzsimmons has also been given credit for going out of his class, but I doubt if Fitz ever fought at the middleweight limit, or near it, after beating Jack Dempsey for the title in 1891.

times by men of his own avordupois, and probably the worst licking he ever took in his career was given him by George "Kid" Lavigne, the lightweight champion. Of course, Wolcott had an alibi for that—that he weakened himself by reducing to meet the weight conditions. No doubt that did not help him any, alitho there are a great many who are of the opinion that the Saginaw Kid's gameness under fire was really what defeated the negro.

Another thing not evidently known by those who prate about Wolcott, and especially of his defeat of Choynski, is that the latter was a sick man when he entered the ring with the coon. Joe should never have been permitted to box that night at all, as it was only a question of how long he conuld stand on his feet. His pride, tho, was too much for him—he didn't went it said he was afraid of a man 25 or 80 pounds lighter. I was one of the few who advised him to call the bout off, but other pressure brought to bear in addition to the confidence he had that no small man could beat him overruled me, and Choynski went force. Terry McGovern did not have down to a quick defeat.

with Johnson next month, that the big boy is very confident he can defeat the champion. Of course, much of the stuff sent out from that quarter of the weakest sort of imitation of the wallop that made McGovern from now on will be of the unreliable sort, largely edited by the boosters for sort, largely edited by the boosters for the big mill, and those who contemplate wagering on the result should not permit the training camp news to influence them one way or the other. However, I hope the big fellow really does feel that way about the job he has undertaken. Confidence is a wonderful asset in a fight and if Jess, way down deep, thinks he can defeat Johnson, that confidence is not going to hurt his chances any.

Kilbane ought to win on points at six rounds. He is too skilful for the Baltimorean, and while the latter may be every bit as fast he will find Johnny's defense the greatest he ever bumped into. Unless Williams makes a good showing in this short, affair there will be small chance of promoters bidding for a long bout between the two chompions. However, Kilbans, if he is as foxy as his critics make him out, might draw a close

There is also the chance that Willard's great size will help him in the match with Johnson. Jack has never shown much against a big opponent, barring the Jeffries flight and Jeff was a shadow of himself then. Johnson's best work in the past has been done at close range. He is flatbeen done at close range. He is flat-footed and never chases his opponent about the ring in an attempt to do with Willie Beecher at Madison Square damage. But in clinches his great Garden he looked anything but a strength has enabled him to pinion an champion. In fact, had Beecher been opponent's arms until he manoeuvred in condition at all he might have in condition at all he might have reversed the verdict. For two or three celebrated uppercut as they were rounds Weish fought as amateurish a battle as I have ever seen and Beecher, who by the way, is far from being a world-beater, was doing nearly all the work the may discover that Willard's world-beater, was doing nearly all the work up to the time that his lack of condition formed there to slow up. In strength is quite as great as his own and, not only that, upper-cutting an opponent who stands three or four inches higher than himself will not be so easy a matter. It may develop that Willard's immense bulk, which many consider his greatest handicap, may, in this fight with Johnson, prove his greatest asset.

However, this is a flight one could

Stallings Put Pitcher to Sleep

The question of how to make his men sleep the night before the first game of the world's series was a problem which worried George Stallings, but he solved it in so far as his pitcher was concerned by a neat subterfuge.

"The night before the first game I called Rudolph aside," he writes, "and said to him: Dick, I don't expect to work you tomorrow, because I think we can get away with the game without starting you. But you had better get your regular rest now, because it might be necessary for you to step into the box there, and pitch a little if things break that way and we have to take some one out. I just want you to be ready."

"The result was that Rudolph went to bed that night with no anxiety on his mind. He did not think he would pitch the next day, and he had nothing to worry over, so he slept and came to the job fresh and clear eyed."

difficult matter, as some critics as-sert, to make the limit, what advantage there is will all be in Williams' favor. The Kid's last appearance in New York as a bantam was on Christmas Day, and it was then annoounced that he weighed 116 pounds. But to everyone at the ringside he looked more like a feather than a bantamweight. Can He Hit Hard?

The impressions prevails among local experts that Williams' muscular development—he is a miniature Hercules in appearance has cost him much of his hitting power. For tea rounds he knocked the veteran Johnny Daly about the ring, but at no time was the latter even close to a knock-down. Which would indicate that the to hit a man often to floor him. R.C.B.C. NOTES

Lawn bowlers, tenpin, billiard and dancing enthusiasts all dropped their avorite amusements and joined the throng of four hundred merry euchre players who filled the club rooms Monday evening, bent on making this effort of the club to help the needy of Riverdale an unqualified success.

To say they accomplished their purpose is to mildly express it. Everyone enjoyed the evening hugely, and the committee are entitled to no small credit for the large part they played in furnishing such an entertaining eyening.

We thank the talent who kindly helped the good work and are indeed pleased that so may friends turned out to assist this worthy cause.

Tuesday evening the tenpin and lawn bowlers were hard at it. A. R. Clarkes grabbed the odd game from the Infants at tenpins, which gives them a half-Nelson on the second series, but the Trolleyites may turn the juice on another notch and break away, as six wins on their postponed games will place them neck and neck with the leaders.

Thursday Broadviews, who had a splendid chance, fell down and dropped two to the J. E. Russells, altho they put up a score that would have copped three games had their opponents not been knocking the wood at an unusual clip.

At the Central Y M.C.A. Friday, in one of the fastest handball games ever seen in this city, Harry Phelan defeated Harry Downing by the score of 21 to 12, thereby winning the championship of Canada. The score, however, does not indicate the play by any means, as Downing had all the better of the play in the early stages of the game, but seemed to weaken a little under the pressure, while Phelan made a whirlwind finish, running out the last eight points without losing the serve, Phelan will be obliged to defend his title once every two weeks against all-comers, and, as he already has several challenges, it certainly looks as if he will have a busy time if he wishes to hold the title.
