DEATH RATE OF TUBERCULOSIS HERE REDUCED

General Secretary of Canadian Association Visits City

Within the last 25 years the death rate from tuberculosis in Canada has been reduced by more than 100 per 100,000 of population, and in 1925 the death rate from this disease in the Dominion was under 80 per 100,000, a showing better than that of the United States and better than any country in Europe except Denmark.

That was the statement made last night by Dr. R. E. Wodehouse, general secretary of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis. Dr. Wodehouse pointed out that when the Canadian Association was organized in 1900 the death rate had been 180 per 100,000 of population and while he did not claim that the entire reduction was due to the work of the association or of similar organizations, he felt that these organizations and their campaigns of publicity had been the big factor. Dr. Wodehouse came to Saint John from Prince Edward Island, where with the members of the Maritime Tuberculosis Campaign Committee, 17 clinics were held and the experts saw more than 200 cases which had been referred for examination by 47 doctors, all of whom were enthusiastically co-operating with the Maritime Tuberculosis Campaign Committee.

At Charlottetown on Tuesday night a special meeting had considered ways and means of obtaining treatment for the cases which had to be taken out of the homes immediately and these exceeded 50 in number. There is no hospital for tubercular patients only in Prince Edward Island and while it was agreed that some accommodation must be procured the exact type was not definitely decided.

CONFERENCE HERE
Last night Dr. Wodehouse was in conference with Dr. R. J. Collins, superintendent of the St. John's Hospital; Dr. H. A. Farris, superintendent of the St. John's County Hospital; Dr. J. Wherrett, traveling diagnostician under the Maritime committee, and E. L. Morris, who is assisting in organizing the campaign in New Brunswick. Hon. Dr. H. I. Taylor, Minister of Public Health, was expected to be present but through some misunderstanding Dr. Wodehouse arrived at the city. Over long-distance telephone Dr. Taylor was communicated with and expressed his entire sympathy with the campaign.

While he could make no definite announcement, the minister hoped soon to have a second tuberculosis diagnostician working in New Brunswick, with headquarters at Fredericton and operating directly under the Department of Health. Dr. Wherrett formerly held this appointment but his services were required by the Maritime committee and the provincial government consented to his transfer to work directly under that organization. Dr. Wherrett's headquarters were in Moncton.

SPEAKS OF CO-OPERATION
Dr. Wodehouse spoke most appreciatively of the co-operation of the newspapers in the publicity campaign that is now being carried on and in the matter of publicity he was of the opinion that the sale of tuberculosis Christmas seals, apart from the financial returns, was of tremendous educational value and some of the best publicity obtainable.

He was relying upon the sale of Christmas seals in Saint John to give special impetus to the provincial campaign. The sale of seals is being undertaken in Nova Scotia this year for the first time, the doctor said, and in Halifax and some other centres active committees had the work in hand. The Halifax workers were following the methods adopted in Saint John.

Dr. Wodehouse leaves this morning for Quebec and while there he hopes to arrange for the French-speaking leader of the anti-tuberculosis movement in that province to come to New Brunswick to address meetings to be held in the coming week-end at Shediac, Memramcook and Moncton.

APPEAL TO MEN OF CHURCH BY BISHOP
Addresses Those of St. George's Hall, W. E.

His Lordship Bishop Richardson was the special speaker at the meeting of the congregation of St. George's, St. Jude's and Good Shepherd churches, held last evening in St. George's Hall, when there was a very large attendance.

The Bishop, in his eloquent address, made a very strong appeal to the men. He spoke of the church as a divine institution and pointed out the place of the men in relationship to the church and their duties to the church. He exhorted them to worship, to sacrifice and to work. Rev. F. J. LeRoy, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, was chairman and offered the opening prayer and Rev. John Unsworth, rector of St. George's church, read the Scripture portion. A letter from Rev. J. H. A. Holmes, of St. Jude's church, expressed his regret that he had been obliged to go to Halifax to attend a meeting of the Board of Governors of King's College and was unable to be present. The hearty singing of the hymns was very inspiring. The accompaniment was played by the organist of St. Jude's church.

A resolution of very hearty thanks was extended to Bishop Richardson and was moved by Stanley E. Olive and seconded by Commissioner W. L. Harding.

Night Class In Typewriting

THE first night class in typewriting at the Saint John Vocational School was held last evening with 35 pupils in attendance and Miss Jean Patterson as instructress. Miss Patterson was formerly teacher of typewriting in the Modern Business College and has splendid qualifications for the work she is undertaking. There are more than 30 other pupils who wish to take typewriting in the night school course and another class will be opened later, but no definite information as to the date was available last evening.

As Hiram Sees It

"Why, there's a reg'lar 'dick goin' up to the town feller, pintin' to the patch of moonlight on Long Reach—they ain't Frenchmen—nuther. Why—there's hundreds of 'em."

"Them," says he, "is the ghosts of Colonel Monckton an' his twelve hundred men goin' up to chase the French settlers off the river. That was the first day of November, 1758. Monckton he couldn't take his ships up through the falls—so he got sloops an' whaleboats an' used them. He burnt fifty houses an' barns at what's now called Gagetown—the French families takin' to the woods an' he destroyed all their crops. Some burnin' was done at Upper Gagetown—an' at Jussage—an' a lot of cattle killed. A little settlement below Gagetown was burnt—an' the Bellisle an' Robichaux places above the mouth of the Bellisle. He couldn't git up to Ste. Anne's that's now called Fredericton—but he didn't leave nothin' on the lower part of the river—an' in the winter some New England rangers went up the ice to Ste. Anne's an' done a lot of burnin'—an' even killed some French women an' children. I guess they was as bad as the Indians used to be. But Monckton didn't hev no part in it. He done his fust fightin' in Flanders—an' then come here—an' about a hundred an' seventy years later we sent men from here to fight in Flanders. Aint that queer? He was at the siege of Louisburg, was second in command with Wolfe at Quebec—was Governor of New York—and then a member of the British Parliament. Them was the ghosts of Monckton an' his men we just seen in the moonlight on the river."

WOMAN FROM OUTSIDE CITY SELLS 10,000 AND ASKS FOR MORE
Although the distribution of Christmas seals in the city will not commence until next week, one woman in a town near Saint John already has disposed of 10,000 seals and has sent in a request for more.

These seals, the proceeds from the sale of which will be used in the battle against tuberculosis, will be distributed next week to 3,500 people in the city. The success already attained, even before the opening of the main campaign has greatly encouraged the committee which has the matter in hand.

There are six members of that committee and they have been meeting every day for a considerable period getting ready the envelopes, folding the seals, putting wax paper around them and doing all of the work necessary. It is a task of some magnitude, but they hope that by next week they will have the seals in readiness to mail to the 3,500 people whose names they have listed.

Each envelope will have one dollar's worth of seals and a stamped and addressed envelope for the forwarding of the dollar payment to the committee. There is no obligation to purchase and the stamps can be returned in the addressed envelope without any cost or any great inconvenience to the recipient.

The seals are very attractive this year showing three carol singers. The returns from the sale of the seals are relied upon to finance the work of the local free dispensary.

CALLED POLICE.
Policemen Gill and Journey answered a call to a house in Market Place, West Side, about 11:30 o'clock last night, as the occupant complained that some persons were trying to gain entrance to the house. When the policemen arrived no intruder was there.
