erships are in the finals, and one of the candidates for mayor (Mayor Frink) is a friend of the commission plan.

The failure of Mr. Fisher to poll a larger vote was due in part to his absence from the city, and in part to the fact that many who would have supported him had pledged themselves to one or the other of the opposing candidates before they knew that he would be in the field. As it was, he made a good showing. Mr. Bullock's large vote was the result of a long and thoroughly organized campaign.

The candidates of the Citizens' Committee were compelled to face an insidious.

The candidates of the Citizens' Committee were compelled to face an insidious mode of attack. They were described as the "silk stocking brigade," and "the Board of Trade Bunch," and voters were told that an attempt was being made by this group to gain power for their own ends. The people, however, were not influenced by such appeals. They had voted for commission, and they wanted friends of the plan to introduce the new system. This seems to be a fair inference from a study of the figures.

Mr. Allingham did not poll as large a vote as his colleagues, but should make a much better relative showing on the second ballot.

Mr. H. R. McLellan polled a remarkably large vote, being second in the list of candidates for a commissionerable. In his card Mr. McLellan declared himself a believer in and supporter of the commission form of government. This fact and his personal popularity brought him strong his personal popularity brought him strong support.

The members of the existing city council, with the exception of Ald. Wigmore, did not fare well in the contest, and he was a long way behind three of the candidates of the Citizens' Committee. There was nothing personal in the jolt given to the members of the council. They had got in the way of a forward movement in civic affairs, and it went over them. They misjudged the force of mublic sentiment.

It is true that Mr. Bullock, who got the largest vote for mayor. misjudged the force of mublic sentiment.

It is true that Mr. Bullock, who got the largest vote for mayor, was an opponent of commission, but he must fight the lin government."

of commission, but he must fight the finals with Mayor Frink, and the struggle will be a very keen one.

On the whole, the Citizens' Committee have reason to regard the outlook with a considerable degree of satisfaction. Their labors have given the city a better system of government, have aroused a more general interest in civic affairs, and have brought into the finals in this conteat a group of men from whom it is possible to select an excellent city council or commission. There is yet, however, a fight to win, and the citizens generally should take a deeper interest in the campaign of the next two weeks than in that which ended yesterday. It is just as important now as before that the commission plan should be inaugurated by its friends, who are pledged to put forth their utmost efforts to' achieve the desired result, which is good government for St. John.

Solong AFTER TRADE

The Ottawa Journal says:—"The debate in the Ontario legislature last Wednesday on Mr. Rowell's motion for abolition of the bar proved a striking illustration of the strength of temperance sentiment in the province. No member of the legislature said a word in defence of the bar. Wr. Rowell and the Liberal side of the house wanted to banish the bar; Sir James Whitney and the Conservative side of the house had no objection except that inamuch as abolition of bars might promote liquor drinking in worse manner, there might be some better way to pursue temperance progress—so, as an alternative, Sir James advocated legislative latic whole treating habit."

WANTED A GOUD ONE.

A distinguished divine of unusually solemn and impressive appearance went out to a country town not long ago to address a temperance society. He arrived early in the afternoon, and all the town, of course, "spotted" him within five minutes as a very great and saintly man. He went into a chemist's, and in tones that froze the young blood of the assistant behind the counter said — "Young — man—do—you—smoke?" "Y-yes, sir,' said the trembling druggist, "I'm sorry, but I learnt the habit young and haven't been able to leave it off yet." "Then," said the great divine, without the movement of a muscle or the
