SIX YEARS AMONG THE ESQUIMAUX

Inspector Fitzgerald Tells of Funny Experiences

Police Officer the So'd Judge and Jury,
Church and State, in Herschel Island.

MONTREAL, Jan. 4.—Six years up in the Arctic regions, among the Esquimaux and whalers, with only one short visit to civilization. This is the interesting experience of Inspector F. J. Fitzgerald of the Northwest Mounted Police, who is in the city in quest of recruits for his force. The inspector, who is at the Queen's Hotel, has an inexhaustible fund of information about the people who helped Peary discover the North Pole.

"There were six of us stationed on Herschel Island, 2,300 miles north of Edmonton," said he. "We were up there to look after the whalers, and see that the natives did not get liquor. But it was easy work, for the natives are about the quietest lot of people I ever had anything to do with. The policeman's word is law there. They wouldn't think of questioning it. Let me give an instance:

"A girl and boy married. The girl there marry at about 13 years, and the boys at 17. Well, these two married, and the girl's father gave the couple a whale boat for a wedding present. But the girl died. Then the husband died, too, and the question was, 'Who gets the boat?'

"The father of the girl claimed it, and they couldn't agree, so came to me. I advised them to come to some agreement, but they couldn't, so I took the case in hand. I concluded that, as the girl died first, the boat went to the husband. When he died, it went to his people, so I gave it to his father, who was in harder circumstances than the girl's father. They didn't have a word of objection to raise. 'You speak,' was all anyone said when I gave judgment."

CALL WOMEN 'HIM.'

"The same holds good in their marriages. Some men die, and a young single fellow wants the widow. So he comes to me.

"He wants that man's woman," says he.

"Him want you? I ask. They call women 'him' there."

"Yes."

"Then take her. And that is all there is to it."

"They never act like Indians. If an Indian goes out with you and you meet him back he gets sulky. But that's not the way with an Esquimaux. 'All right, by-and-bye plenty grub. All right now,' is all he'll say."

"How do they stand the cold?" asked the reporter.

"They dress in two suits of skins. The first suit they wear with the fur turned inward; the other has the fur on the outside. When they go in their snow lamps at night they light their stoves. In a couple of hours the lamp is so warm that they have to poke holes in the roof to let the heat out and fresh air in. Then, when it is all nice and warm, they strip off their clothes off. The women clean and scrape the furs, and dry them, ready for next day. When they strip off, they wear any clothing, but wrap themselves in the furs, just as they are. Warm? I guess it isn't cold the morning, getting dressed," and the inspector shrugged his shoulders and laughed.

"However, if the furs were not cleaned and dried in this way every night, they would rot in no time."

THEY HOLLER FOR SOAP.

"I used to think the Esquimaux were the dirtiest people in the world," continued the inspector, "but I have changed my mind. Why, they are always after us with the plea for 'Soap! soap! soap! We want wash clothes! They wash everything at least once a week. An Esquimaux is far cleaner than an Indian."

"I do not think that Esquimaux can stand the cold any more than a white man, but they understand how to dress. Their faces, too, seem adapted for cold weather, for they have very small noses. They come to us and say: 'What for white man have big nose? Freeze quick.' They pay very little attention to the weather, and I have seen little children playing games out of doors with the temperature 40 degrees below zero."

GREAT ON CARVING.

Speaking of the work done by the natives, the inspector told of finely-carved walrus tusks.

"They make cribbage boards for the white men that are wonderful specimens. They cut down one side of the tusk till it is quite flat, and then bore the necessary number of holes. The rest of the tusk is beautifully carved. I have one with a splendid carving of a harpor, with ships on the bay. On one side is a carving of boats in pursuit of a whale, and on the other the scene where the whale is killed. They rub lampblack into the carving, and it never washes out. One native was shown an American dollar. He looked closely at it, and then went to his hut and carved a wonderful reproduction of the spread-eagle. It was truly marvelous."

WHITE MEN SCARCE.

About 800 miles east of Herschel Island is a district known as Prince Albert's Land. The people here have never seen a white man. The only exception, so far as can be learned, is that of an old woman, who saw white men when she was a girl.

"These people have copper tools, which they have learned how to temper," said Inspector Fitzgerald. "I have seen copper knives made by them which are as hard, nearly as steel. This is an art which would be of wonderful value down here."

"The police at Herschel have very little difficulty with either natives or whalers. If a sailor deserts from a ship, I go after him, and simply tell him it means certain death to try to cross the mountains into the Yukon. If he won't come back, I force him to, for that is the only way to save his life."

NATIVES VERY HONEST.

"The natives are very honest. In all my experience I never knew one to tell a lie, or steal. Perhaps they will when they learn our ways more."

At this station there are only two mails a year, one in February, and one in July. For 43 days there is no sun visible, and papers arrive but once a year. It costs $420 a ton to get provisions from Edmonton.

"I do hope there will be no gold discovered there, for it would do in the rush for the Yukon, hundreds would die on the way to Herschel."

concluded Mr. Fitzgerald.

Forty men are wanted for the force, and the inspector will be in the city till the 20th of the present month, to explain the situation to applicants.

"If I had my time over again, I should certainly join the force," he declared.

AS EASY AS A B C.

Have you ever noticed that some people, when they try to explain something they do not understand, use very big words? Sir William Hall, one of the greatest living astronomers, can explain even this difficult branch of science in simple words and phrases. In the same way, people who know how they lost their health and regained it, can tell us all about it, in words "as easy as A B C."

Take the case of Mr. George Morris, 18, Cathedral Street, Montreal, who, on June 28th, '09, wrote us, saying:—"I would like to join with others who have benefited from the use of Mother Seigel's Syrup, by thanking you for the benefit I received from it while suffering from indigestion. I had always been strong and robust; in fact, being a shipper, I was obliged to be able to lift heavy weights. Well, five years ago, I first fell ill. I felt weakness, lack of energy, loss of appetite, and when I did eat a little, I suffered such violent pains across my chest and back that I dreaded food and often went hungry. I had bad headaches and with the least exertion I felt dizzy and the blood rushed to my head."

There you have a plain, straightforward description of the ordinary symptoms and miseries of indigestion. But Mr. Morris takes you farther and tells you what he did.

"This, with foul breath, coated tongue, and constant nausea, made me begin to lose hope of ever getting well again. But a friend told me of Mother Seigel's Syrup and I tried it. One week's treatment brought great relief and when I had used the Syrup one month, I was completely cured."

There is no reason to doubt that what Mother Seigel's Syrup did for Mr. Morris it will do for you. It cured him and it will cure you.

Taken daily after meals, it will cleanse and invigorate your system, restore tone and vitality to your stomach and liver, and make you look well, feel well and be well.

GENUINENESS GIVES POWER.

There is nothing which will add so much to one's power as the consciousness of being absolutely sincere, genuine. If your life is a perpetual lie, if you are conscious that you are not what you pretend to be—that you are really a very different person from what the world regards you—you are not well.
