Twentieth Century Disease. The

Causes more Deaths than all other Diseases Combined.

"What's the use of locking the stable door after the horse is stolen?" A wise man is forehanded and locks the door first. Apply this to Consumption. What's the good of treating an incurable disease? Be forehanded, lock the Gateway—Catsrrh, and thus prevent Consumption from taking hold of your system. Kvery sensible person know that Catarrh is the forerunner or starting point of Consumption, and every Catarrh sufferer is very liable—not perhaps right away—but perhaps next year or afterwards, to be in the deadly grip of that dread disease.

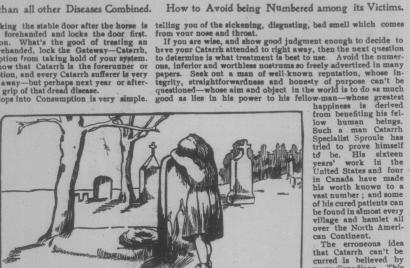

The way Catarrh develops into Consumption is very simple. During the day or waking part of one's life, the Catarrhai mucus which forms in the nose and throat is hawked up and spit out. During sleep this is beyond one's control and very frequently small particles are inhaled into the Bronchial Tubes and Lungs, thus affecting these organs—RESULT — Consumption.

"GO IT, TOM !"

Tom belonged to a settlement school and the school has furnished most, if not all, the real happiness he had ever known. Here the good in him was developed until somehow he began to forget the bad.

He was a sturdy little athlete and won most of the races and other contests of strength. Through various winsome traits he had found his way to the heart of the teacher and she was always interested in his success. One day arrangements had been made for a footrace. Several boys were to run, although everybody was sure that Tom would win.

The preliminaries were settled, the race was started and the boys were off over the course. Tom lead clear and free for about half the distance; then to the surprise of everyone, Johnny began to gain on him. Jim was just behind Johnny and running vigorously. Tom's feet seemed to grow heavy and Johnny steadily decreased the heavy and Johnny steadily decreased the distance between them, until finally he shot past Tom and, with a sudden spurt, gained fully five yards in advance. Jim was close behind and he, too, sped over the line a little abead of Tom, but enough the line a little ahead of Tom, but enough to give him second place and to leave Tom out of the race.

"Why, Tom, what was the matter?" asked the teacher, as the defeated boy came toward her with tears streaming down his face.

His only answer was a sob.

"Tell me what happened, Tom."
Tom dug his knuckles into his eyes to dry his tears and tried to tell his story.

"I started all right, you know—"

"Yes, you led them all."
"But when I got half-way there the boys began to call: 'Go it, Johnny, you're second.' 'Hustle, Jim, you're most to him.' Run, Johnny, run; you're most to him.' Run, Johnny, run; you're most to him.' But nobody said, 'Go it Tom,' and somehow it got into my legs and they wouldn't go;' and Tom, dropping to the ground in a heap, cried as though his heart would break. — The American Boy.

DRINK AND THE BRAIN.

Dr. Clouston of Edinburgh asylum,

Scotland, writes to the Health Monthly:
"I am safe in saying that no man indulges for ten years continuously, even though he was never drunk in all that time, without being psychologically changed for the worse, and if the habit goes on after forty years the change is apt goes on after forty years the change is apt to be faster and more decided. We see it in our friends, and we know what the end will be, but we cannot lay hold of anything in particular. Their fortune and works suffer, and yet we dare not say they are drunkards, for they are not.

It all depends on the original inherent strength of brain how long the downward course takes. Usually some intercurrent diseases of tissue degeneration cuts off the man before he has a chance of yetting old. I have seen such a man simply pass into sentle dementia before he was an old mannfrom mild, respectable alcoholic excess without any alcohol sm or preliminary outburst at all.

"I am sure I have seen strong brains in our profession, at the bar and in business break down from chronic alcoholic excess without their owners ever having been once drunk."

GIVE ME TO DRINK

John 4: 24.

O ye who seek the earthly wells.
To draw the waters to the brink,
Remember who it is that speaks
The deathless words, "Give me to drink."

"Give me to drink!" 'Tis a command;
'Tis one thou should'st not dare refuse;
But know the Master wills to let
Thee exercise thy power to choose.

"Give me to drink." He seeks of thee, And thou, in turn, can'st seek of him; Go call thy friends; make haste, make haste: The water springeth to the brim!

HIS IDEA.

She—"I wouldn't marry you if you were the last man on earth."
He—"Of course not. There would be no one to perform the ceremony."--Rx.
