A Chaplain Kuhring Writes Home Beautifully of Attending Wounded in New Brunswick Hut

"Most Effective Recruiting Call That of Men Who Go Gladly Back to Service"-Spiritual Comfort for the Dying and Physical Needs Ministered To-Nurses and Doctors Put Patients First When Delicacies Are Going Around-Casualty Lists Should Not Always Mean Worry.

Recent letters from Rev. (Capt.) G. A. Kuhring, now chaplain at No. 3 Canadian Stationary Hospital in France speak of the comforts brought to the wounded in the New Brunswick hut, containing sixty-eight endowed beds and of the fine spirit of the men in wishing for an early return to the front.

It is one experience to read the list of rumors in the newspapers at home towards this good work; it was a much greater one to look upon the finished building and its perfect equipment.

It was my good fortune not very long ago to have Miss (Dr.) Parks as a guide through this New Brunswick hut. There is nothing like it for beauty and fitness for its purpose. No New Brunswick man can look upon it without pride, and no one can walk through its wards without feeling himself almost at home. It is somewhat startling to look at a patient in bed, and lifting ones eyes to a placard read inscribed

Personally I shall always be grateful for having been permitted to see with my own eyes this fruit of New Bruns-

I am persuaded that a great deal of unnecessary anxiety and sorrow is borne by loved ones at home, because of a little lack of knowledge of facts, and also because we who write from the front arc prone to describe the rarer and more awful cases which come under our observation. I am therefore writing a servation. I am therefore writing a servation of the word of his God, "Into Thy hand I commit this little printed portion of the Word of his God, "Into Thy hand I commit this little printed portion of the word of his God, "Into Thy hand I commit this little printed portion of the word of his God, "Into Thy hand I commit this little printed portion of the word of his God, "Into Thy hand I commit the had accomplices."

It is a law of the service to treat every case with precaution, hence casualty lists are large, and many speedly return to convelescent camp, base hospitals and front again. If his case is "dangerously ill" a telegram or cable is always sent to next of kin, and here O. C's of hospitals insist upon cases being placed on the danger list, if there is the slightest danger. We find that many cases on the danger list, soon come off and the patient recovers. Do not worry unless you get a cable "dangerously ill" a telegram or cable is lightest danger. Can you picture to yourself over sixtycight beds, in a "hut" filled with sunshine, each bed occupied by one who a few hours before came out of a dirty unpleasant trench, and now finds himself ministered to by these "angle nurses"; and again these sixty-eight beds, are being constantly filled and re-filled during the long and passing months. Hundreds will live to bless those who have made such comforts possible. No picture can convey its power to bless-One must stand and look into the faces of the men who enjoy its generous safety and ministrations.

To Dr. MacLaren, too much praise cannot be given for his wise and expert advice in planning this model building. Before I pass from this New Brunswisk "blu" in Etaples, let me say that I have in Miss Parks a wonderful assistant and friend. It is hard, and sometimes, impossible for me to get to such as a comparation of the men who enjoy is generous sits and the Real Cross see we get to sit the sit of the supplies go to the particular to the supplies and the supplies and the supplies and the supplies and the supplies go to the particular to the supplies and the supplies and the supplies and the supplies go to the particular to the supplies go to the particular to the supplies and the supplies go to the par expends on a meal when they are control for having been permitted to see with my own eyes this fruit of New Brunswick's generosity.

What has been a puzzle to me for some time past is the eager spirit with which men go back to the firing line.

I was coming back uphill to camplast week, and I noticed a large body of men in khaki, in full marching order, a full battalion. As they came nearer and passed, I saw their splendid physique undimmed eyes, inspiring carriage and unquenchable purpose. They were made up of parts of twenty to thirty regiments, and about six weeks ago were the individuals published in "casualty lists".

They knew what they were going back to, they knew of they had both seen and felt the fire. What was it that enabled them? It was the first permenthered that the men at the front needed them—they must go back and help them. It would have been right, that after their hard experience, they should have woluntereed, stayed at home, and others taken their place, but no—men who should have voluntereed, stayed at home, and they go forward to face death again, these men with big hearts, to help the brother at the front. I think that the most effective receiving call is that of these men going back to do duty and service.

"They need us at the front."

German Exhaustion of Men Makes New Tactics Necessary -Trenches Thinly Manned With Main Strength in Counter-attacks--Military Expert Writes That Germany and Austria Have Each But Three Divisions in Reserve-France Enrolls Class of 1918.

(LONDON SPECIAL CABLE TO THE TELEGRAPH.)

London, Oct. 3-Headquarters British Army Somme front, October 2-Some things go to show that the Germans are purposely adopting new tactics to conceal their losses in the recent fighting which have been terrifically heavy. Prisoners brought in during the last few days estimated that every German unit which has recently opposed us has lost 75 per cent of its strength.

The general conclusion is that we have been punishing the enemy very severely and there is every indication that the Germans find their losses much heavier than they can stand and are trying to minimize them by offering comparatively little resistance to our initial attack, holding their chief troops back and then counter attacking as hard as they possibly can. Their front trenches several times lately have been held very lightly by comparatively few men who it seems had orders to use their rifles and machine guns for all they are worth as we advance then when our attack got home
