Our Next Serial Story

MANY of the great story plots of to-day belong to the Great World Intrigue. Everybody knows how the Greasy Hand of Gold went over the world. Of all countries Asia still contains the greatest field for the Greasy Hand. The Ukraine is being broken up by it. The Ukraine has surrendered. The Ukraine via Persia and the Afghan's Land heads towards the two greatest masses of national peoples in the world; 400,000,000 Chinese, and more than 300,000,000 Hindus. England's flag floats over all south of the Himalayas; over dense masses of population gradually being educated to self-government. Germany still plots to infect those masses of Orientals who constitute three-quarters of the whole population of the Empire. The Hun with his wriggling "Welt-Politik" of plotters and spies aims to overlord the Oriental world. England's success in India makes him jealous. But there are revolutionaries. Among so many hundred millions what wonder? It is these whom the Hun tries to dissect.

You remember that strange tale of the Komagata Maru that shortly before the war was refused permission to land her cargo of plotters in Canada? More recently you have read in the newspapers of the sensational trial of Hindus in San Francisco, where the Greasy Hand of Gold to the tune of $20,000,000 was getting in its work.

Of all Empire problems—not even excepting Ireland—India is the biggest. And if ever there was a time when a new story by a man who knows India came at the psychological moment, it is now. In our next issue we shall begin with a big instalment of this new fascinating story of India,

THE WINDS OF THE WORLD. By TALBOT MUNDY.
