Editor's Talk

At the present moment the interest of the public is divided among football, hunting and politics, and it is difficult to say which is the most absorbing topic. All three are represented in this issue. The photograph which forms the basis of this week's cover design gives an exceptionally good presentation of a cow moose in a virgin forest of Northern Ontario. Mr. Burriss' story of his first moose hunt is amusing as well as interesting. Football and politics are somewhat similarly treated in picture and comment.

Our Children's Department has been appearing in nearly every issue, but some of our readers have suggested that it should appear in every number. Arrangements have been made whereby we hope that in future no issue of this journal will appear without a Children's Department. We recognize that the "Canadian Courier" has become a home paper in which every member of the family may take an interest. We are happy that this is so, and we intend to take every measure which may be necessary to keep the paper in that proud position. While we shall continue to deal with the more serious Canadian events, we shall not overlook nor abbreviate those features which make a different kind of appeal.

* * *

From time to time it has been the custom to publish in this column typical letters from subscribers giving their opinion of the "Canadian Courier." Out of a number of very interesting communications recently received we select the following:

Swift Current, Sask., Oct. 26th, 1911.

Gentlemen,—I have been a subscriber to the "Canadian Courier" for over two years now and it has become indispensable in my office, not only to myself, but for my patients in the reception room. Its unbiased political opinions, its originality, general freshness and crispness are indeed stimulating. May your paper continue to thrive and grow and hold its unique position as "The National Weekly."

Yours very truly,
G. L. CAMERON.
