This neat fitting two-piece tailor-made style possesses all the necessary characteristics to make it one of utility as well as being attractive in design. The waist is simple but fashionably designed and closes down the left side with self covered buttons; two pleats extending down from either shoulder give the requisite amount of fullness; sleeves are cut in the plain shirt style with link cuffs; a laundered linen collar is supplied but not the tie shown in the illustration. The skirt is a nine gore circular flare model displaying a panel front and thus easily laundered. The patch pocket on the right side is a convenient place for the handkerchief and the tab and button trimming adds to its appearance; self covered buttons are used on the skirt where the closing is made and a separate belt of self material braided in scroll design gives the finishing touch to this serviceable model.
