

DR. HANNAY FOUND DEAD IN HIS BED

Had Been Suffering From Heart Failure and Passed Away Early Wednesday Morning—A Leading Historian

In the death of Dr. James Hannay, which took place very suddenly shortly after midnight yesterday, N. B. loses one of its foremost historians and a man who took a leading place in the ranks of Canadian writers. The deceased was found dead in his rooms in the Fugley building early this morning, heart failure being the immediate cause of death. Dr. Hannay had left his bed, but the exertion of getting up evidently brought on an attack.

The deceased was taken quite ill on Sunday, but it was not considered that his condition was critical. Dr. Innes attended him and Tuesday evening John A. Boves spent several hours with him and left him in apparently fair health. On entering his rooms with breakfast yesterday morning, Warren was shocked to find Dr. Hannay dead. It is supposed that death took place shortly after midnight.

The deceased had taken a sea trip to Philadelphia in September last, but his health did not improve. In November he went to Oak Point and remained there until about two weeks ago, when he returned to this city. Dr. Hannay had been dining at the Union Club, but ill health made it necessary of late for him to have his meals in his rooms.

The late Dr. Hannay was born at Richibucto on April 22, 1842. He was the son of the late Rev. James Hannay, a Presbyterian clergyman. His mother was in maidenhood Miss Jane Sailer of Hants county. The deceased received his early education at New Kilpatrick parish school and at the St. John Grammar School. He pursued the study of law and in October, 1866, was admitted attorney of the supreme court of the province. He was called to the bar in 1867. The same year Dr. Hannay received the appointment of official reporter of the supreme court, a position he held until 1873. During his tenure of office Dr. Hannay gained distinction by the publication of two large volumes, dealing with the decisions of the supreme court.

Not finding the practice of law suited to his tastes, Dr. Hannay abandoned it for the profession of journalism. He entered active newspaper work on the St. John Daily Telegraph, and from 1872 to 1883 was associated with the late Hon. William Fisher in the editorial management of the Telegraph. In 1883 Dr. Hannay went to Montreal, where he occupied an editorial chair on the Montreal Herald for a year and a half. He was subsequently connected with the Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle and passed through the positions of general writer, literary editor and associate editor during his stay in the United States.

Returning to St. John in 1888 he assumed the editorial chair of the Gazette. In 1888 he accepted the chief editorship of the St. John Telegraph. Dr. Hannay's writings were warmly appreciated. In the discharge of his editorial duties he combined a wide knowledge of affairs with a virile yet graceful mode of expression. He was quick in perception and rapid in composition. Dr. Hannay was generally optimistic and believed in supporting first what was best for his native country.

When quite a young man Dr. Hannay wrote poems under the name of "Saiadin" for the St. John Courier and other papers. Later he gave a number of balladistic incidents in Acadia, describing picturesque incidents in its history. These were widely circulated and gained for Dr. Hannay a position among the best of the Canadian poets. The Acadia ballads were recently reprinted in pamphlet form. When Stewart's Quarterly was established in St. John by George Stewart, Dr. Hannay became one of its best known contributors, supplying sketches and stories written in the lighter vein.

Dr. Hannay's first effort historically was a series of sketches of the early forts in New Brunswick. This was shortly followed by "The Captivity of John Cyles Among the Micmacs from 188 to 1888," which he published in 1875, with an introduction and annotations by himself. The same year he wrote a history of the city of St. John, collecting material for the work which afterwards made his reputation as a historian. He had been for some years busy in the libraries upon a history of Acadia, and in 1879 he published the "History of Acadia." The work was very favorably received by the public and obtained high commendation from the reviewers. It possessed the qualities essential to both an historical and literary sketch. The work was an elaborate and scholarly production, its pages showing clearly the research of the historian, the judicious cast of the thinker and the grace of the literateur.

In 1883 Dr. Hannay's next historical work, "History of the Queen's Rangers," appeared in the St. John Sun. After that his historical labors ceased for a time, but were renewed in the production of three or four more important works. These were the "History of the Province of New Brunswick," printed in the Telegraph during 1894; "The Township of Margareville," the "History of the War of 1812," and the "Life and Times of Sir Leonard Tilley," the latter published in 1897. Dr. Hannay's latest work, the "History of New Brunswick," in two volumes, was published last year. The work is one of his finest attempts and has had a large demand. These works form a library of great value, especially with respect to the history of our own province. They give a constructive story of New Brunswick from the earliest times down to the present, dealing as they do with the periods of French occupation, early English occupation, arrival of the Loyalists, the war of 1812 and the latter days of political life.

Acadia College honored Dr. Hannay in 1889, when it conferred the degree of Doctor of Civil Law upon him. The deceased was an excellent speaker and had lectured on various occasions on his historical subjects.

In 1884 Dr. Hannay was married to Margaret, daughter of the late Elias T. Ross of this city. She passed away last year in Fredericton, where they had been residing.

On the retirement of Michael McCade from the office of reporter of the House of Assembly Dr. Hannay took that position. He capably performed the duties until two years ago, when he was succeeded by W. W. Hibbard.

The deceased will be buried at Fredericton.

REMOORSE WORSE THAN THE GALLOWES

So Judge Imposes Life Sentence for Infanticide

Family Nearly Wiped Out—Train Kills Two Strangers—Suspects Released—Child Died From Burns.

BELLEVILLE, Ill., Jan. 12.—A lifetime of remorse rather than death of the gallowes was the penalty imposed today on James Pullman, who confessed that he had killed his month-old baby by crushing its head with his heel.

It will not sentence Pullman to the gallowes, said Judge A. Crow, of the Circuit Court, "but to the penitentiary for life. It will be punishment more terrible than death for him to be hanged day after day by the cries of his murdered child."

Pullman killed the child last July after he and the infant's mother had failed to find a home for her.

CHARLESTON, Pa., Jan. 12.—Two children were killed outright and their mother and two other children were seriously injured when an explosive Joseph Keates, a miner, was preparing to take into a mine with him went off in the kitchen of his home, where it was being thawed out over a stove.

SACCO, Mass., Jan. 12.—An express special, from Portland to Boston, struck and killed two men who were walking on the tracks near the western division station of the Boston and Maine Railroad, in this city, tonight. In the clothing of one of the men the coroner found gold and bills amounting to $188. The men have not been identified, but are believed to have been members of the Greek colony here.

TERRE HAUTE, Ind., Jan. 12.—Chief of Police Kotch telegraphed tonight to the police of New Orleans to release Miss Eric Sellaberry and Henry Cochran, who were arrested in connection with the death by poison of W. F. Riddickman or Helman, a jeweler, in a hotel last Monday. He left letters accusing Miss Sellaberry of poisoning him, but a chemical analysis of his viscera showed that he died of cyanide, which must have caused death a few minutes after he took it. The accused woman left him several hours before he died.

CALAIS, Me., Jan. 12.—Ellen, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bayard, died today from the effects of burns received Tuesday when her clothing caught fire from a stove during the temporary absence of her mother.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 12.—A special from Key West says that with the discontinuance of work on more than fifty per cent of the extension of the East Coast Railway, from Miami to Key West, the city is over-run with idly working men, most of them ignorant of signers, and that some of them are practically penniless and without food. The mayor of Key West has arranged to furnish one meal a day for those in need.

SERIES OF GAMES PULVERED AGAINST PASQUALE FERRARO

Italian is a Much Wanted Man—Will Go Back to Salem to Face Larceny and Bigamy Charges

Pasquale Ferraro, a native of New York, was last evening nabbed here after eluding the police authorities of Lynn (Mass.), Halifax, and this city for nearly six months. Ferraro skipped his bail in Lynn in August last year after having been committed for trial on charges of larceny. Several other charges were also about to be brought against him. Detectives have searched everywhere for him during that past six months, but their search without avail until this evening when, partly through good luck and partly through the clever work of the police and detectives, the noted criminal was at last rounded up. Unfortunately for the poor Italian, he was thrown into the streets and at the mercy of the police by the very man who he shielded him during all the time he was being hunted down.

WILL BE TAKEN BACK.

He will this morning be taken back to Salem, Mass., where he will face charges of larceny in which over $300 is involved, bigamy, theft, and several other charges of a serious nature. The case is a peculiar one, probably more so than any St. John has known for years.

Pasquale Ferraro, who is twenty-six years of age and of Italian descent, was born in New York, where he lived off and on. Four or five years ago he married, and moved to Lynn, where his criminal career began. The marriage was not altogether a happy one, and quarrels between the couple became frequent.

About three years ago Ferraro shot his wife and a friend of hers, his jealousy having been aroused by finding his spouse with another man. On this charge he was tried and convicted of wounding with intent to kill, and was sentenced to fourteen months in Salem jail, which term the Italian desperado served.

This offense formed but the beginning in a life of criminality. As soon as the man was released from prison after serving his term he began to steal money right and left. In Lynn he stole $200 from one party, $103 from another, and also pilfered a suit of clothes, a watch and several other valuable articles, most of them belonging to numerous to mention. He also stole $25 and a gold watch from an Italian ped.

About a year and a half ago he left Lynn to visit to Halifax, and while there he fell in love with the daughter of one Jones, a well-known organ grinder in the city. With this fascinating white girl the Italian eloped, and did not return until he was charged with a short time in charge of larceny with his "affinity" and there he was married to her. He informed the clergyman performing the ceremony that he had never been married before, but his father-in-law claims that he never even divorced from his first wife, to whom he was legally married.

With his would-be wife he returned to Lynn after living in Halifax for a short time, and there he lived with the Jones girl while his other wife was living on a different street in the same city. He was soon discovered, and nabbed by the police, and he was charged with bigamy and larceny. He was committed for trial to a higher court, and allowed out on bail in the small amount of $200. It was just as he was about to be taken to court for bigamy and larceny was about to take place he skipped his bail. He came to St. John, and took up his abode with the Jones girl's parents in Main street. With them he lived, despite their expressed desire that he should leave the house. He followed them to Halifax, and again came back to St. John with them, and has been here ever since. His trial was to have come up in September, and in that month he came here. It was soon learned by the Lynn authorities that the man was in St. John, and E. E. Fairfield, of Lynn, representing Mr. R. Cornely, bail commissioner of Lynn, came here a few months ago, but did not return with the man. He could not find him. Since that time the local police and J. A. Barry, representing Mr. Fairfield, has been working on the case.

On Monday Mrs. Barry telegraphed Mr. Fairfield to come to St. John at once, and the latter arrived here yesterday morning. Efforts were at once made to find the Italian. As the boat

EGZEMA CURED THROUGH THE BLOOD

By the Aid of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills—That Wonderful Tonic Medicine

Eczema or salt rheum is a disease of the skin which shows itself in small, red, watery blisters—these blisters break and leave a scale which may be rubbed off by the hand. The affected parts are intensely itchy and the itching cannot be relieved by any article of clothing over the parts.

The disease is caused by bad blood and must be cured through the blood. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured many cases of eczema simply because they are the one medicine that acts wholly on the blood—the seat of the trouble. Among those cured by these Pills are Chas. Davidson, of Amherst, N. S., who says: "I suffered greatly from salt rheum or eczema and my hands were badly cracked. I tried several ointments, but they did me no good whatever. I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and had only used them for a few weeks when the trouble disappeared and my hands were entirely healed. I am very grateful for what the pills have done for me and would advise other sufferers from this trouble to try them."

What Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for Mrs. Davidson they have done for many others—not only in cases of eczema, but in all cases of eruptions and pimples, chronic erysipelas, scrofula and all other maladies which arise from poor blood. They banish these troubles simply because they clear the blood of all impurities and leave it rich, red and health-giving. The Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or direct by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Treasury Board will meet this afternoon for the purpose of receiving the estimates of the various departments for the ensuing year. With the marked increase in the estimate of the Public Safety and Public Works departments there is every prospect of the tax rate being over 82. In 1909 the rate was 81.8. It is expected that the assessment will increase the property valuation in the city and will find other means of enlarging the available source of revenue as far as taxation is concerned. However, even a marked increase in the amount of taxable property will not prevent the assessment rate from reaching the two dollar mark. Should the estimate of the various boards be reduced the tax rate may not be affected to any great extent. There is a likelihood of the common council reducing the estimate of the department of Public Safety.

SYDNEY, N. S., Jan. 12.—The announcement may be expected any moment of the appointment of D. J. Donald as general superintendent of the Dominion Coal Co. Mr. Duggan retires from the active management of the coal company. Mr. Donald will also have charge of all the steel company's mining operations.

FURS LIKELY TO BE HIGHER THAN EVER

Sealskin Coats Will Cost $200 to $300 More than Last Year

Other Strong Advances Caused by Extraordinary Demand All Over the World.

The extraordinary demand for furs all over the world, especially on the continent of Europe, has created a remarkable advance in the price of raw skins to the monetary advantage of the furriers and collectors in all parts of the fur-bearing world. The higher prices of sealskins is recorded in the official sales reports from London, just to hand. Sealskin has not to any extent affected the Canadian consumers, as most of those who can afford the luxury of a seal garment do not mind an advance of two or three hundred dollars in the price of a long fashionable model coat, but such much used pelts as muskrats, raccoons, skunks (called Alaska sable), mink, opossum, etc., quickly reach the pocket of the average person, because in Canada furs are a necessity, aside from the element of fashion, which, of course, is exemplified also in increased number of skins required to make any article according to present vogues.

Muskrat skins which are entirely the product of the North American continent, have had an advance of 100 per cent, over prices ruling in this city last year. The demand from Europe for this pelt, principally for dyeing as an imitation of sealskin being tremendous, naturally follows that the Canadian purchaser of any article in which muskrat is used, principally as the lining of a cloth overcoat or ulster, will face an advance of about $25 on his or her investment, if the latter garment be their desire.

The raccoon coat, the most durable and popular of fur coats, will cost the intending purchaser in 1910, the furriers declare, at least $20 to $30 a garment more, skins at the present time selling freely at fully 60 per cent advance in price over last year, while the heaviest fur used—used principally for dyeing in imitation of skunk—are quoted at an advance of fully 100 per cent.

Skunk skins of the finer grades, which one year ago could be bought raw at average prices of $2 each, are today bringing for the new catch around $4.50 each. The fur of the skunk, with its rich, fluffy appearance and remarkable durability, has taken the fancy of Europe to the extent that it is used in every possible way for any lady's winter toilette, as trimming on cloth coats, skirts, also for use in combination with other furs in an all fur coat, etc. The writer in fact, saw worn on the bow-waist in Paris a few weeks ago, magnificent ermine-shoulder cape and large muffs trimmed with this pelt, the contract effect being very beautiful.

Canadian ladies will, therefore, not be surprised to find the retailer asking almost double old prices for any articles made up of the lordly skunk skin. Persian lamb skins, which are hard to obtain and command a much higher price, and be it noted that in no part of the world is there a demand for the finer skins equal to this Canada, of course, whose people on an average are better posted and more exacting as to the fur qualities than any others.

Foxes of all kinds are very much higher in price, and by reason of the gradual extinction of this animal about treble the price of two seasons ago.

Mink skins are ruling about 35 per cent dearer than a year ago, and even such fur pelts as marmots (to imitate mink), electric seal, coney hoes and rabbits, have gone up fully 50 per cent; sable, ermine, martens, fishers, etc., in fact, down to the household tabby, are all ruling higher than ever before.
