In Memorium

In memory of Private Stanley West of Carmanville, who was killed on July 1st, now reported killed in action.

A lad so brave and full of life, Went forth to take his stand— To fight for dear old England, And also Newfoundland.

He left his home so young and fair, His heart was light and gay, And over the sea he went to roam From friends so far away.

He thought of home and friends so dear, But still he went to fight— He knew his country needed him— To battle for the right.

He did his duty bravely, And he could do no more; He died for King and Country, And Terra Nova shore.

Now our soldier boy is sleeping, He's numbered with the dead, Free from care and earthly sorrow, In his lone and silent grave.

And when your grave is growing green, And you are lying still, We'll think upon your loving face, That once we loved so well.

When your sweet face we looked upon, In the happy days gone by, We never thought that you dear boy, On the battle field would die.

As time roll on and years pass by But still our hearts are sore, We'll think upon that brave young lad Sleeping on a foreign shore.

And often we will drop a tear, For him who nobly fell, There's none can fill the vacant chair, Of him we loved so well.

Oh, who will cheer his parent's hearts, In their time of pain, The Lord His mercy will impart, For our loss is Heaven gain.

But we will shall meet you by and bye, When earthly cares are o'er, And dwell in that bliss home on high, On that bright and happy shore. FLOSSIE DAY, St. John's, Oct. 20, 1916.
