

COURTESY COST HIM HIS LIFE

Gave His Seat to Lady and Fell From Train - Overcrowding Peril.

An overcrowded train and his own innate courtesy led to the death of Alfred W. H. Waker, the nineteen-year-old son of a widow, of Cooper's road, High Street, Homerton, on whom an inquest was held at Shoreditch on Tuesday.

Waker was travelling in a North London train from Broad Street to Homerton, and while standing up in a crowded compartment the office door flew open, and he was thrown on to the permanent way near the Dunloe Street signal box. He was run over by a passing train and decapitated.

Edward Bridges, of Brookfield Road, Hackney, said he was a passenger in the compartment. The train stopped at Shoreditch, and soon after it had started there was a cry that someone had fallen out of the train on the outside. The communication cord was pulled, and the train was stopped before it could reach Haggerston. He could not say how Waker fell out.

The coroner in reply to a question, was informed that there was no one present who actually saw the youth fall out. Dr. Wescott remarked that Waker must have been standing next to the door, or he would not have fallen out.

"My instruction," said Mr. Copper (appearing for the relative) "are that Walter gave up his seat to a lady who got in the train at Broad Street. He was rightfully in the carriage when someone entered. As it was a lady, he would naturally give his seat to her, and that would remove any blame from him. I do not say that the railway company ought not to permit this overcrowding."

"If the compartment was crowded he would have no business to get in," remarked the coroner.

"He was one of ten who got in at Broad Street and had a seat," replied Mr. Copper.

"Then I suppose the lady would be at fault in getting in and inducing him to commit an illegal act by giving up his seat," said the coroner, amid laughter.

Mr. Tait, who appeared for the railway company, said that as to overcrowding it was impossible to prevent people standing in these carriages.

The jury returned a verdict of "accidental death," but said there was no evidence to show how the floor came open.

Mr. Tait and the coroner expressed their sympathy with Waker's widowed mother.

Mr. Plowden on Pitch and Toss "Go away and don't gamble, because it collects a crowd," said Mr. Plowden, at Maryebone Police Court on Monday, to two men accused of playing pitch and toss. The magistrate added: "Otherwise, there is no harm that I know of. Pitch and toss to your heart's content if you can do it without being found out."

WOMEN NEED A SAFE TONIC

And There is Nothing Better Than Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Toning up the Blood.

It is said that woman's work is never done, and it is a fact that whether in society or in the home her life is filled with more cares and more worries than falls to the lot of man. For this reason women are compelled regretfully to watch the growing pallor of their cheeks, the coming of wrinkles and the thinness that becomes more distressing every day. Every woman knows that ill health and worry is a fatal enemy to beauty and that good health gives the pleasant face an enduring attraction.

What women fail to realize is the fact that if the blood supply is kept rich and pure, the day of the coming of wrinkles and pallor, dull eyes and sharp headaches is immeasurably postponed. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are literally worth their weight in gold to growing girls and women of mature years. They fill the veins with the rich, red blood that brings brightness to the eye, the glow of health to sallow cheeks, and charms away the headaches and backaches that render the lives of so many women constantly miserable.

Mr. W. Williams Jones, Crow Lake, Ont., says: "I feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills saved my life. I was so badly run down that I could hardly drag myself around. I was so bloodless that I was as pale as a sheet, and you could almost see through my hands. In fact the doctor told me my blood had all turned to water. I was taking medicine constantly but without benefit. My mother had so much faith in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that she bought me two boxes and urged me to take them. How thankful I am that I followed her advice. Before they were gone I began to feel better, and I continued using the Pills until I had taken five more boxes when I was again enjoying the blessing of perfect health, with a good color in my face, a good appetite, and I feel sure a new lease of life. I will all ways, you may be sure, be a warm friend of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you are weak or ailing begin to cure yourself to-day with the rich red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills actually makes. If you do not find the Pills at your dealer's send 50 cents for a box or $2.50 for six boxes to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and they will be sent you by mail postpaid.

SECRET WEDDING. One more secret marriage has turned out unhappily, and the courts have had to come to the rescue of the parties. In the Divorce Court on Tuesday, Mrs. Sophia Mary C. Stevenson, daughter of Major Lindsay, of Clifton Gardens, Malda Vale, asked for and was granted a judicial separation from her husband, Mr. Joseph Harold Stevenson, a black and white artist, described as a "very powerful man, 6ft. 5in. in height." Mrs. Stevenson, giving evidence said she was married in June, 1908, she then being twenty-eight and her husband twenty. "For some time the marriage was kept secret. From first to last her husband had not contributed a penny to her support. Later, her husband came to her father's house, demanded admittance and claimed her as his wife. The next day she went and lived with him at Kennington. He was always drinking, and pawned her jewellery to get money. They afterwards went to live at Kilburn. On one occasion, when she was ill, he had caused her to walk a long distance, and at the end she fainted. He had turned her out into the street in her nightdress and locked the door, and had used bad language to her and frightened her. When she said she would leave him, he said, 'If you do I will shoot you.' She eventually left him, and went to live at her father's house. He came there and insisted on her accompanying him back to his room. When they got there he took up a razor and threatened to cut my throat. As soon as she could, she got back to her father's house. Correspondence took place as to their living apart, and in one of his letters he said: 'I have gone from the paths of goodness and you can divorce me when you like. I am going abroad very soon.' He wrote to her and asked her to meet him at the Tube Station, Egleware-road. She met him there, her mother's maid accompanying her. 'You may as well know—I am living with an artist's model.' He had since gone to Montreal." No Doubt. No doubt the archdeacon who scaled Mount McKinley will be considered a high churchman hereafter.—Macdon Telegraph. Wood's Peppermint Cure. But Aviator Must Go Miles in 72 Hours Get it.

SOUTHAMPTON, Eng., Aug. 16.—A hydro aeroplane tour around the coast of England and Scotland, prize of $25,000, was started tonight from Southampton with only one participant, H. Hawked, the winner of the prize in 1912, accompanied by a senger. The shore was black with spectators, who gave Hawker a great cheer on his 1600 mile flight, which must be completed within 72 hours. Descent may be effected at water only at the control station Ramsgate, Yarmouth, Scarborough, Aberdeen, Cromarty, Oban, Falmouth and the finishing point, Netley. The fact that there is only one competitor for the big prize on the part of the newspapers, which seem to prize the contention, Great Britain is still dependent on foreign engineers for flying power.
