It cures any case of the difficulty, never fails to restore the organs to full natural strength and vigor. The doctor who made this wonderful discovery wants to let every man know about it. He will therefore send the receipt, giv-ing the various ingredients to be used, so that all men at a trifling expense can cure themselves. He sends the recipe free, and all the reader need do is to send his name and address to L. W. Knapp, M.D., 1710, Hull Bldg., Detroit, Mich., requesting the free recipe as re-ported in this paper. It is a generous offer and all men eught to be glad to have such an opportunity.

HIS FOLLY.

Cut One Notch in lin Fool-Stick a Little to Deep.

"We all have a tool-streak in our compositions," said the youngish-oidish man with the I-was-sent-for-andcouldn't-go-back look. "Some of us are born fools and others are self-made fools; some are spasmodic or occasional fools; some are regular, everyday fools, and in degrees we vary from plain common, unadorned fools to ornamental, elaborate, gorgeous fools. I think I am not merely one of these various varieties of fools, but all of 'em in one grand conglomerated combination, mixed and mingled like a plate of hash.

"I used to keep tally on my foolishness with a stick on which I cut a notch every time I made an especially noticeable fool of myself. When I sent by the hand of my best friend poetical declaration of love to the richest and prettiest girl in the village, and then sneaked over and listened under her pa's window and heard my friend propose to her, be accepted and then read aloud my amatory rhyme, where-at they both laughed gleefully, I went home as the crow flies and cut a notch in my fool-stick. Each time, after I had invested my hard-earned money in an estate in Europe, a horoscope, a machine for putting white paper in at one end and grinding out new ten-dollar bills at the other, a batch of directions for converting an ordinary lunkhead into a social lion in three days, a formula for getting the financial world by the tail with a down-hill pull, and so on, I cut another gash in my fool-
