New York Mutual Life Association Bill Debated.

Frank Oliver Insisted That It Was in a Defaulting Position, But Mr. Heyd Said Not, But That Bill Enabled It to Convert a $5,000 Insurance Policy Inte a Straight Life Policy For $1,425.

Ottawa, Aug. 8.—The alien labor bill was given a third reading Sat-urday afternoon, despite a renewed protest from Walter Scott and an protest from waiter Scott and an amendment proposed by Nat Boyd.

Mr. Boyd wanted a provision giving Northwest farmers the right to bring in harvest hands. Sir William regarded this amendment as useless; conditions in this particular respect were not being changed. The Prime Minister condemned the proposal, saying that it was mischievous. It would mean that Canadian harvess. would mean that Canadian harves-ters could no longer go over to Dakota for the early harvests there and then return for the Canadian Mard Knecks For Insurance Bill.

The New York Mutual Life Association received some hard bumps in the House Saturday. When the bill was taken up in committee, C. B. Heyd read a statemen, prepared by the association, in which it was shown that 785 policyholders have accepted the bill, 44 have opposed it, and 90 asked for further integral. and 90 asked for further informa-

Frank Oliver of Alberta, said there was something very questionable about the association or its proposition. The fact that 40 policy-holders opposed it and 90 asked for further consideration, was to him a strong reason why the bill should not be passed. strong reason why the bill should not be passed. Parliament was being asked to give the association a complete change of basis on a mom-ent's notice. The proceeding was

Mr. Heyd replied that critics might call the association a lot of murderers if they chose. It did not affect the merits of the bill, which was designed to protect the policyholders. The insurance department was satisfied with the bill, the Senate has amons to act.
r. Oliver insisted that the as-

Mr. Offiver insisted that the association was in a defaulting position. The policyholders were not asking for the bill. The association had either broken faith with its policyholders or was an insolvent. "The company is not bankrupt," said Mr. Heyd. orphan, was forcing them to accept 30 or 40 per cent. of their claims. Henderson Inquisitive.

Mr. Henderson wanted to know where the bill originated. Was it forced on the company or had the company brought it before Parliament? 'I don't know,' answered Mr. Heyd. 'I heard of it first when the company by Senator Kerr. it was introduced by Senator Kerr, at whose instigation I don't know. I am considering the bill from the standpoint that is beneficial to Can-

Clause five, stating the conditions under which the company's deposit is to be maintained, called forth a to be maintained, called forth a strong protest from Mr. Gervais. He said the clause was vague, so vague that the good lawyer could without difficulty make 50 cases in the Privy Council. It was draited this way purposely. The company which had now $226,000 on deposit could and would reduce the amount to $40,000 within 24 hours after the session closed. "I say that under no circumstances should this deposit be reduced," declared Mr. Gervais. He moved an amendment providing that moved an amendment providing that no payment should be made out of the deposit as it stands to-day for five years, except for death claims in accordance with the insurance act.

Would Mean Defeat. Would Mean Defeat.

Mr. Heyd said that the acceptance of this clause would send the bill back to the Senate, which, in view of the imminence of prorogation, would mean its defeat. Such he insinuated was the purpose of the mover. He said, furthermore, that the deposit was in the hands of the Receiver-General, who had absolute control over it.

Mr. Barker said if the deposit could not be withdrawn and if there was

Mr. Barker said if the deposit could not be withdrawn and if there was no intention of withdrawing it why should the clause not be made clear? Mr. Heyd repeated that if the bill was sent back to the Semate it would be killed.

Arpealed to by several members, the Minister of Firance stated emphatically that in ro case could the deposit be withdrawn from the treasury, nor could it be utilized for the payment of death claims. It would be held simply as security for fulalment of the company's obligations to its policyholders.

Mr. Fielding said he was in a way prevented from taking an active part prevented from taking an active part in the discussion, being a policy-holder himself. He regarded the clause as perfectly safe. All that the public interest required had been when Eddie Dill, a young man of 18 years, was stabbed to death by William Haley.

Both were residents of Martoch, a few miles distant from Windsor. Dill and a numerous party, including his younger brother, had been spending the evening in the town and on starting for home about 11 o'clock the were joined by Haley, who was also on his way home. They stopped to do a little shopping and during the short time they were together Haley was the butt of a good deal of joking on the part of Dill's younger brother, which he resented.

Dill championed his brother's cause and a row ensued, during which Haley drew a knife from his pocket, deliberately opened it and stabbed Dill oyer the heart, the blow penetrating that organ. The stricken youth staggered a few parcs and fell, dying in two or three minutes.

Haley did not stop to see the result, but kept on, and when arrested was three milas from the scene. He is a married man with a sick wife and five small children. There are now two men in Windsor jail held for murler, and in each case the victim was a boy and the crime caused through teasing.
