Scotia Lodge, No. 28, held a banquet at the Waverly hotel, Cannock, on New Year's evening, at which forty members and guests were present, among them being the W. M. and J. W. of St. George's Lodge, No. 20, from Wolfville.

When you want the next barrel of flour let us send you something good. "Rainbow" and "Cream of the West" arriving every week direct from the mill. R. E. HARRIS & SONS.

According to notice the annual business meeting of the Wolfville Baptist church was held in the chapel of school room on New Year's evening. A great number of members were in attendance. Dr. Cohoon president and all of the officers and societies and committees gave reports of the past year's work. It was very gratifying to know that the finances of the different departments of the church had been so generously supported even though lacking the inspiration of a pastor. Many pledges toward the erection of the new church had been redeemed, so as to enable the Building Committee to substantially reduce the amount of the loan. The clerk, treasurer, S. B. superintendent and retiring trustees were reappointed. Mr. J. W. Vaughn was elected to serve as deacon for seven years, in place of Mr. Lawrence Eaton who retired. So the church enters the new year with renewed courage, hope and confidence.

When you are making up that next $25 order to send out of town, remember this. We save you the two cent stamp, meet their price and can often give you back some change. Think it over. R. E. HARRIS & SONS.

The Boy Scouts.
The first hockey practice of the season was held at the rink last Saturday morning from 9 to 10.

Their practices will continue at the same hour every Saturday as long as the funds will stand it.

The game with the Windsor Scouts will take place at an early date. We hope that the Wolfville boys will gain possession of the cup this year. As soon as this game is over the inter-parish games will begin.

We now have cups for inter-parish shooting and basketball and if any one wishes to present a cup for inter-parish hockey it would be greatly appreciated.

At the regular meeting on Friday evening the basketball game will be between the Otters and Beavers.

Harties driven to all points of interest and at reasonable rates by experienced and careful drivers. Special attention given to wedding parties. WOLFVILLE GARAGE, Phone 20-11.

C. H. BORDEN WOLFVILLE.

Married in California.

The following from an Oakland, California, paper, refers to a young lady well known here, a daughter of Mrs. I. N. Coldwell, of Gasperus. Miss Coldwell spent some time in Wolfville, where she was engaged as a milliner at Mr. J. D. Chambers'. THE ACADIAN extends best wishes.

A pretty wedding took place December 31st at the home of Mrs. E. J. Henderson, was that of the young man's sister, Miss Blanche M. Coldwell, of Nova Scotia, and Frank M. Carr. The bride has been visiting in Oakland during the past year at the home of her sister, Mrs. Henderson. She is of English type and possesses a winning personality that has won her many friends in the smart set of this city. Attending the smart set, Miss Carr is a graduate of the San Jose Normal school. He entered the University of California, taking a special course in law, and was admitted to the bar in 1909. He served as assistant to the superintendent of schools for the past seven years, under George W. Prick. He is now practicing law in this city. He is a member of the Alameda Lodge of Elks and served two years as District Attorney Grand President of Native Sons.

The Boy Scout Movement.

DEAR EDITOR:—What are some of the signs of the times? Professor Huxley, of Iowa University, in a recent article says: "Our age is threatened with a great danger—that of a moral deterioration. Old pillars of morality have been largely undermined, and the new ones we are striving to erect have not yet acquired solidity. At the same time our highly developed civilization becomes more and more complex, and offers increasing opportunities for pleasure and self-indulgence, thereby increasing the opportunities of temptations. In such circumstances it is necessary to wage an energetic warfare against the effeminate of the moral attitude and the effeminate of the woman like man type is a greater affront to our humanity than is the 'man-like woman' which threatens us."

In view of the foregoing, and the Professor is the mouthpiece of thousands of Canadians, the greatest need of our age is for a new type of man to combat this subtle epicureanism that pervades the very atmosphere we breathe.

Is the man of to-day an improvement on his predecessor of the preceding generation? This question is discussed at some length in a book by Philip Gibbs, entitled "The New Man." Mr. Gibbs has issued a definite and unmistakable challenge to the men of his generation. It is a call to arms. On every hand there are grounds for disquietude. Our author sees in the Boy Scout a symbolic figure standing as sentinel over the portals of the future. It is to him—trained, disciplined, and full of patriotism and enthusiasm—that we look hoping, trusting, praying that the New Boy may develop into the New Man. "If he fails us, we are finished."

The Wolfville Boy Scout is more than a symbolic figure. He is one of the recognized institutions of the town. The teaching and training which he has received, in common with his brother scouts throughout the world (by the way, the Boy Scout Movement is one of the most world-wide and cosmopolitan organizations on this planet), has developed in him the Boy Scout conscience, chivalry and courage that differentiates him from the generality of boys. If there is one man in our town who is deserving of a higher meed of private respect, that man is a Scoutmaster Brown. The scheme of instruction through which a scout passes before he reaches the top of the proverbial ladder is too well known to need reiteration. Suffice it to say, that this course of instruction begets a desire to become really useful, the boy scout realizes that there are a great many things he can only learn to do by doing them. Most of the work consists in playing scouting games, exercise in scouting practices and passing tests, both compulsory and optional tests (proficiency or handicraft tests). Thus experience and efficiency are gained, and so scout, true to his motto, "be prepared," is prepared at all times to do his duty, by prompt obedience to the Scout Law. "We are not in the world to play—for the sake of play—but to play, to do, to lift. Shun not the struggle, face it, 'tis God's gift."

But what I desire to say at present, by way of reminder, and I wish to say it with emphasis, is that underlying the whole Boy Scout Movement is a religious principle. The various Denominations, including Roman Catholicism, approve of, and endorse the Movement. They recognize its ethical value as an avenue through which to reach the boys, of the 'teen age, to seize the boys' characters in the red hot stage of boyish enthusiasm, and to weld them into the right shape, so that this new boy may develop into the new man.

In brief, his value as a producer of Christian Character and Good Citizenship is generally acknowledged. The International Sunday School Association, in connection with its Secondary Division, through a recently formed League, has placed itself on record as being desirous of co-operating with various activities, including the Boy Scout Movement, for helping the boys and girls of the teen-age. I take the liberty of quoting from the leaflet in question: "The value of the Scout idea consists, first, in its modern character; second, the Scout is challenged to definite service of his own seeking in the 'daily good turn'; third, the work of the Scout is progressive, pedagogical and recreation-educational, heading up in citizenship. So much for the attitude of the Churches and the International S. S. Association toward the Boy Scout Movement. What is the attitude of the latter toward the Churches? Most friendly and fraternal. Again I quote; this time from the official Handbook of the Boy Scout Movement: "An organization of this kind would fall in its object if it did not bring its members to a knowledge of religion. Religion can and ought to be taught to a boy, but not in a milk-and-water way. A number of Sunday Schools have taken up the study of God's word through Scouting as a part of their instruction with good results. The following pronouncement by the Governing Council on the subject of religious observances sums up the policy which has guided the Boy Scout Movement from its inception: (1) It is expected that every Scout should belong to some religious denomination, and attend its services. (2) Where a Troop is composed of members of one particular form of re-

Qualifications for Scoutmasters: A full appreciation of the religious and moral aim underlying the practical instruction all through the scheme of Scouting.

We have every reason to believe and none to doubt that the Boy Scout Movement will continue to grow in numbers and in usefulness, and that the individual Scout will develop into a personality, a glimpse of which we obtain in these lines, referring to the knights of old:

Their honor was sacred. They were loyal to God, and their king and country. They were particularly courteous and polite to all women and children and infirm people. They were helpful to everybody. They gave money and food where it was needed, and saved up their money in order to do so.

They taught themselves the use of arms in order to protect their religion and their country against enemies.

They were clean, neat, strong and healthy and active in order to be able to do these things well.
