On Monday the store of R. Notter, grocer, at Owen Sound, was entered by burglars, and a small amount of money taken from the safe. A number of similar offences have been committed at the Sound lately, and no clue has been found.

Lawson, editor of the Presbyterian, of Charlottetown, preferred by Hon. W. D. Stewart, ex-Commissioner of Public Works, of Prince Edward Island. The cause caused great excitement and interest in Maritime Provinces.

A bald-headed eagle, hovering over Sir John's Island, suddenly swooped down and attempted to carry off a two-year-old child of Mr. John Clancy's, playing in a field alone. The light clothing gave way with every tug of the voracious bird, and was torn into ribbons. Some men working near by, came up in time to save the child from injury, but the eagle refused to go any distance away until shot at.

Thirteen months ago a young man named Albert Arkaw, of Ompah, was shot on the water one night in mistake for a deer which was thought to be swimming. The wound has been similar to that of President Garfield. A few days ago Arkaw rode on horseback from his home to Ompah, a distance of four miles. He now uses a crutch to get around with, though he lay for nine months a great sufferer. The bullet came away of itself.

SARNIA, Aug. 16.—Four young ladies had a narrow escape from drowning on Tuesday evening. They were coming off the Ontario when the steamer Hawathia was moving out from the dock. The motion of the latter caused the Ontario's stern to swing out, and the after gang plank fell, precipitating the ladies into the river. Engineer Pettigrew and one or two more of the Ontario's crew jumped in and succeeded in keeping them up until means were provided for bringing them safely out.

Some time ago a party of miners from Nova Scotia started for Mexico to work in silver mines for a company in which some local miners are interested. On Tuesday afternoon, a little boy, five years of age, named Cornelius McLaughlin, son of a widow residing at 141 Colborne street, Montreal, was playing on the street near his mother's house when John F. Fagan, carter, came driving along carelessly. Before the danger could be realized the horse dashed against the child, knocking him down. Instead of holding in the animal Finnegan struck it with the whip, and in an instant the heavy wheels passed over the little boy's head, and he was carried home dead. Finnegan was arrested and brought to the Police Station, where subsequently his wife went to bail him out, but bail was refused.

When the hour arrived for opening the doors of the Hamilton Academy of Music last night for the appearance of Fannie O'Neil's Hibernian Blondes, a squad of police posted themselves across the entrance. Two others took up positions at the entrance of the reading room and library. The police would allow no one to go in the hall, though Mr. Kneeshaw was there and the ticket office was open. The crowd on the street was very large, and wanted to see the show but could not get in. Every moment came along some person who did not know of the obstruction, and stepping up to the door was astonished at being checked by the police. The show had been advertised chiefly by means of hand bills and small posters, which were suggestive of a show of the "Black Crook" (or worse) style, and it being thought that it would turn out so, the police prevented all persons from entering the hall.

THE WORLD OVER.

Wm. G. Fargo died in Buffalo on the 3rd inst. He is said to have been worth $20,000,000.

Gambetta has announced his policy of reform. The judges and law courts are to be reduced and the English circuit system introduced. No three years' military service and no liberty of association to religious bodies.

Warden Burns, of the Jersey City Penitentiary, has been arrested on a charge of attempting to poison Keeper Farrell by putting a drug in his medicine. Farrell took one dose, with nearly fatal effect, and the doctor says another dose would have killed him.

It is said that the doctors attending the President have agreed to charge $100 a day apiece, while Drs. Agnew and Hamilton are to charge $1,000 each for each visit and $5,000 for each surgical operation performed. Up to the present time, according to this reckoning, the expenses are over $72,000. This looks a little like extortion.

A gentleman in Brockville has a pair of ponies, one of which has curious bibulous tendencies. Every day he goes to a saloon, where he once received a glass of lager, and there he waits until he is supplied with the beverage. His master is a temperance man and never allows him to take too much. Strange to say, he displays no fondness for any intoxicating drink but lager.

Her majesty the Queen has been criticized rather freely for threatening to withdraw her patronage from the international medical convention, sitting last week in London, if women were admitted. Accordingly, forty ladies, regular graduates in medicine, were shut out. The St. John Globe pertinently remarks: "It would be a queer thing if 'the monarch of Great Britain were refused admission to a congress of sovereigns because she was a woman!'"

When Lady Augusta Bruce became engaged in marriage to Dean Stanley, the Queen, with whom she was a great favorite, congratulated her upon the choice she had made, and said to her, "When the Prince consort died, I had hundreds of letters of condolence from my friends, but among them all that which touched and soothed me most was Dr. Stanley's. It was not like nearly all the others, a letter written by a professor of the Queen; but it was a letter written by a tender-hearted man to a broken-hearted woman. He seemed to forget altogether that he was writing to the Queen, and addressed me only as the bereaved widow."

A Bold, Bad Boy. Perhaps the following is not founded on fact. We have endeavored to make it so, and will at the outset decline any intention to deceive the public. An Omaha youth professed great affection for a young lady schoolmate of his and frequently alluded to her as his individual "huckleberry." A coyness, however sprang up between them, and his anxious mother, seeing the fresh color of youth fading daily away from his wasted cheeks, sought and obtained an interview with the young Adonis, in which ensued the following colloquy: "Now, Erastus, I would like to enquire the reason of your apparent melancholy. 'Well, you see, Matilda's weakened on me.' 'Weakened? What do you mean?' 'She's shook me.' 'Shook you? How could she shake a great boy like you?' 'Why don't you twig the thing? She's give me away.' 'Given you away—to whom?' 'Yes, she went back on me and tumbled to a long clap with a read gauge.' 'My son, your language is utterly inexplicable to me. Cannot you give me a more clear account of the disagreeable subject?' 'Well, I'll try. You see Matilda is a nobby sort of a doltiana, and as most of the boys here rather sweet on her, I kinder thought it would be a soft thing to go for her on my own account, and get her to sack some of those low down snides who are always on the blink and never do the square thing anyway. Well, Matilda waltzed right into the game and we just sld right along for a spell till Boliver Mason struck the town, and then she scoured on me. You remember when old Cauliflower turned up his toes and they planted him? Well, ever since then Matilda has thrown me off, so I've concluded to brace up and strike for a new deal. The fact is, when you get to bed-rock in a girl's affections, it ain't any use prospecting any further. I jumped the game and now call for a new lead. Money talks and a fellow might as well pull down his vest and button up his lip. Some other time I'll rent a hall and tell you about it. The jig is up, and I ain't the fellow to squeal on her. Matilda is as gay as a peach, and I ain't a-going to get at all spooney, if you talk it over with Susan, but just sling in too much chin music, but just give us a rest; matters will come out all hunkey."
