MYRTLE, SEFT. 9, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PROTENCE:

I wrote to you last week my opinion of girls, and of my rabbits having to stay out in the cold. Well, one of the poor things has died since and I believe it was just on accourt of not being in the house. I suppose I will find the other one dead some morning when I go out to feed it. When pa read that note you put at the bottom of my last letter, and came to where you said I wouldn't always have such an opinion of girls, he said "he guessed not" and looked at ma and laughed.

Last spring I had a pet crow that came to a sad 33d. My aunt, who was visiting us, caught it one day when we were at the cometery. I kept it for a couple of days all right but one day I asked ma what I would feed it on and she told me to give it onions and salt. I have found out since that onions and salt are very bad for crows, or indeed, any kind of bird. My poor crow died and I buried it with all the style I could get. My chums and I formed a funeral procession at the kitchen door, and marched slowly to the foot of the yard, where we buried it. We put a green sod over its grave. When my rabbit died my sister advised me to give the other one onions and salt to keep it warm, but I know better than that now. I have been real sick since I wrote to you; I was flying my kite and took cold. When ma saw how sick I was she gave me some nasty medicine, sent me to bed and put a mustard plasters are like. I hollered and kicked but pa and ma wouldn't let me take it off for quite a while. I never want to see a mustard plaster again. Say Aunt Prudence, will you tell me of a pet that won't die very easy? Yours truly,

E. Adams.

[It seems to me that you consider yourself a very badly used boy. Well, perhaps Keep your eye steadily fixed on the great reality of death; and all other things will shrink to their true proportions. As in a voyage, when the ship has come to anchor, if you have gone out to find water, you may amuse yourself with picking up a little shell or bulb, but you must keep your attention steadily fixed upon the ship, in case the captain should call, and then you must ave all such things, lest you should thing on board, bound like sheep. So in file; if, instead of a little shell or bulb, some wifeling or childling be granted you, well and good; but, if the captain call, run to the ship and leave such possessions behind you, not looking back. But if you are an old man take care not to go a long distance from the ship at all, lest you should be called and come too late.—

WOODS' FAIR,

[It seems to me that you consider your-self a very badly used boy. Well, perhaps you are, of course I don't know anything about it. That was very pathetic about the crow, was it not? From my own experience, I must say that I think a canary direct of the manufacturers at the closest jobbing prices, so that we are enabled to sell them at about the price the ordinary retail merchant pays. "DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

As I am not a little girl there is only one other thing for me to be, a little boy, 12 years old though, so not so very little after all. You really are a lady, arn't you, Aunt Prudence? not some big, grown-up man at the Advertiser office, with a mustache. I would be dreadful, and I am sure you are not, at least I hope so. So you think a boy ought to have to go to school if he does not want to. I told father and mother last night that I hated school, and didn't intend to learn anything more; but it seems that I am to have no say in the matter. I argued for a long time, and gave plenty of good reasons, but they wouldn't look at it from my side of the case at all, and father says he won't let me be a cowboy. I don't know what I am to do. I have red flannel shirts. I could wear one if I was a cowboy and spurs on my boots. I thought I would write and ask you about it, for I am sure you were never a Sunday school teacher, and so will not tell me that I am a very ungrateful boy. I wish you could see my pet rabbits; they are beauties. I got them from a boy for a pair of skates. I have got curly hair, and I think but for that I would be a very plain-looking boy. I like curly hair, and I think but for that I would be a very pelain-looking boy. I like curly hair ever so much, don't you? I am your loving nephew,

[Why, you dear ridiculous child, of course Aunt Prudence is not a man, and I binding, $2.49; teachers' Oxford Bibles at popular prices; a large stock of boys' and gents' belts and suspenders; just tink, a good pair of gents' suspenders for 10c, and for 25c something very extra; 2 three-string brooms, made from the very best selected hand-picked green corn, for 25c; bird cages from 39c up; the best carpet sweeper made only $2.49; whist and euchre players please note that we are selling for 15c to 25c the best cards in the market; common cards as low as 3c per pack; house painters take best cards in the market; common cards as low as 3c per pack; house painters take notice that we have added to our stock a full line of paint brushes at closest prices; best gray bristle brushes, No. 8-0, at 95c; best white bristle brushes $1 10; something for the little ones, paper dolls, 2c per sheet, or 3 for 5c; Eddy's Celebrated Wash-tubs and Pails at closest prices; just think, a two-hooped pail for 15c, and a good large wash-tub for 55c; a large Kneading Board, smooth and tastily made, only 39c, the Rattler Wash-board, 10c, and the World, Globe and Quick and Easy, your choice, 19c; no need to go with-[Why, you dear ridiculous child, of ourse Aunt Prudence is not a man, and I am as innocent of a mustache as I am sure you are. I really don't think you would enjoy, being a cowboy. Why can't you wear a red flannel shirt, at home if you have a weakness that way. You know a cowboy is a person who can't write or spell or do anything that a 10-year-old Canadian child can, and as you can write a very nice in the surface of the s am as innocent of a mustache as I am sure for 59c, and the best rawhide whip made, usually sold at $2 to $2.50, our price $1; or objec, and the best rawhide whip made, usually sold at $2 to $2.50, our price $1; cartman's lash whip, 14c; carpenter's 2-foot extension rules, 10c; school books and school findings, such as slates, scribbling, exercise and dictation books, lead pencils, slate pencils, etc., etc., at popular prices; a good wastepaper basket for 15c; a beauty for 35c; a 3-pound bar good family soap, 10c; 10 bars 10-ounce Ruby Landry Soap, 25c; 7 bars best Electric soap in the world, 25c; Baby's Own Soap, 10c per cake; Pears' celebrated toilet soap, 2 cakes for 25c. The great sale of corsets still continues; the Just Right seems to take the preference, price $4c; sold nowhere else for less than $1 25. Have about to arrive a carload of best patent stove pipe, 6 and 7 inch; your choice for $\frac{1}{2}c$ per length; elbows 10c each. The trade supplied. Woods' FAIR, 200 Dundas street. DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

This is my fourth letter to you. I am in the Fourth book now, and have two more new studies since I last wrote you—composition and French. I told you all about a little pet dog I had last time I wrote. Well, it was run over by a brute of a cabman. The poor little fellow died almost five minutes after I carried him in off the road. It made me cry dreadfully, and papa offered to get me another, but I told him I didn't want it. No other dog could be the same to me as poor little Gup. Last week mother took me to the dentist. I hardly like to think, even now, of how dreadful I felt as we went up the long stairs leading to his office. My tooth had been aching dreadfully for hours, but on the way down to the dentist it stopped completely. The dentist was a funny old man, who said "Open big" all the time. He pulled out my tooth. It hurt awfully, but it was anything but keep perfectly still. Every Saturday afternoon I am allowed to make tafly. I am going to make some now. Did you ever notice, grown-up people don't generally like tafly. They say it sticks in their teeth. I am real glad it does. It doesn't stick in mine or Rob's. Graudma is a very safe person to ask to mind your candy for she has false teeth, and she hates sweets. I will now stop. With love from your niece, AMY HELEN BROWN.
