-Mrs. Maud Morgan, of this city, re-cently secured in the Toronto courts an order for $5 a week interim alimony against her husband, S. P. Morgan, of Adelaide township. The order was registered on Morgan's land. An order was also secured by Mrs. Morgan to prevent her husband from selling his land, which is worth $4,000. The latter order, however, has been set aside by Judge Wm. Elliot. At the winter assizes Mrs. Morgan will bring suit against her husband for permanent alimony. In her statement of claim she asserts that her husband became addicted to strong drink, and on many occasions used grossly insulting language towards that Morgan was untrue to his wife, and as
